The chicken dinner given in Eagle-Woodman Hall on December 15 by Daphne Circle Club was a decidedly successful affair, the sum of $50 being netted after all expenses were paid. The money will be used to purchase yarn for knitting for the soldiers.

Mrs. F. E. Judd and Mrs. Westbrook Dickson were hostesses yesterday afternoon at an interesting meeting of the Thursday Afternoon Club held at the home of Mrs. Judd. A musical program featured the afternoon, the presence of Mrs. J. B. Dickson of Portland, formerly prominent in Pendleton musical circles, being added interest. A group of songs "Bendemeers Stream," "The Snowing" and "My Home Is Where the Heather Blooms," by Mrs. Dickson, opened the program. Mrs. S. H. Forshaw sang, "Love is a Wind" and "The Years at the Spring"; Mrs. W. D. McNary read an interesting paper on "Trained Motherhood"; Mrs. F. E. Boyden gave several splendid piano numbers. Mrs. Dickson again sang a group, "Yesterday and Today," "The Morning Wind is Whining Me" and "A Prayer for Sleep," and Mrs. Forshaw closed the program with a quaint old Christmas carol. The social hour was especially enjoyable, the tea table being presided over by Mrs. F. E. Livengood, who is visiting here from Albany, and Mrs. J. B. Dickson.

Reminiscences of early days provided a topic that made the hours pass all too quickly while busy knitting needles fashioned warm garments for the soldiers. In keeping with Hoover's suggestions no refreshments were served and the club has decided to dispense with this feature entirely during the war. Guests other than members included Mrs. D. C. Turner and Mrs. C. S. Terpening as hostesses, at the home of Mrs. Turner on East Court.

Thirteen members of the West Court Street Knitting Club met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Wm. Milne and spent a pleasant and profitable afternoon. At each meeting finished sweaters are turned in and a splendid work is being accomplished. Yesterday several musical numbers by Melba Rude and Thelma Bachelor gave added enjoyment and an informal discussion by those who have near relatives in the service proved very interesting. Four new members have been added to the club including Mrs. McMaisters, Mrs. Beryl Mrs. Blydenstein and Mrs. J. E. Smith.

PENDLETON SPIRIT IS COMPLIMENTED BY DR. MARSHALL

The subject of Mr. Marshall for tonight is "Two Kids." Last night he spoke on Pendleton's slogan "Let'er Buck."

High compliment is paid to Pendleton in many things. He said, I admire the splendid enthusiasm, the business spirit and the strong team work in the enterprises you undertake. I like the way you get under the Liberty Loan, the Red Cross, and the other burdens of state and nation. But you forget all this fine spirit when it comes to the claims of the Almighty. I am reminded of Esau who came in hungry from his hunt and Jacob bought his birthright for a mess of pottage. Esau just said, oh well, "Let'er buck." Afterwards he sought a place of repentance but it was too late.

There was a New Testament merchant, with a bargain at his gate. The account shows that while he prospered here in forgetfulness of God he became a dry farmer in hell scratching for moisture. On earth he said, "Eat, drink and be merry." "Let'er buck."

On the Jefferson road some men were traveling alone and it appears that they must have had an ordinance against speaking and more than two people constituted a crowd. I would have liked to have gone down on the street to the men who swore they would never enter a church if the state went dry. The Master warned the people to make peace with God. I am here to call you to use the fine powers you have for a still higher purpose in life. The town is away back and lost that casts away the Christ.

Notable illustration is had in two California towns, Long Beach and San Pedro. San Pedro was a town before Long Beach was thought of. They had a harbor, Long Beach did not. They had many advantages in their favor. But they refused to countenance religion. Long Beach was established with strong support of churches and she has gone on while the other has lost out in the competition.
