The Weakly Bulldogger

MONDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1917.

He Goes to Bed Early Since Hoover Crabbed His Job. Roland Oliver says he is going to ask the council to repeal the curfew law because the ringing of the bell disturbs his slumbers.

Henry Qualified. Before a man can be convicted of the unlawful possession of liquor it is necessary to prove that the stuff he had is really liquor. Therefore, Judge Fee, being a good lawyer, called upon Councilman Henry Taylor to taste the contents of the jug on exhibit in police court.

What is it? the attorney asked. "Whiskey," said the councilman promptly while licking his lips. "I object," said Bill Peterson, attorney for the defense. "The witness has not shown any qualifications to give expert testimony on the subject."

The city attorney hurriedly interrupted. "What is your politics, Mr. Taylor?" he asked. "I am a democrat," said the witness.

The witness has qualified. Go on with the trial," said Judge Fitz Gerald.

There's Only One Chaplain He Knows Sergeant Roy Alexander brought back one from Camp Lewis. A colored private was on sentry duty. The regimental chaplain, who was not thoroughly grounded in things military, was about to pass the lines.

"Halt, who goes there?" challenged the chocolate soldier. Instead of answering "Friend," the minister answered, "Chaplain."

"Advance, Charlie, and be recognized," said the sentry who knew his movies.

Hanks Off. Though the state supreme court has held that it is lawful to picket, we would remind the labor unions of that old adage handed down by the ages. "It will never get well if you picket."

Resolutions. Tomorrow being the glad New Year there will be thousands making their yearly resolutions of good intent. Most men make resolutions only to break them, showing how weak willed they are. As for us we make good resolutions and break them because we have reasoned it out that no good will come of following them. How do we arrive at this conclusion, do you ask? Easy. From earliest infancy we have been taught that hell is paved with good resolutions and we are forced to believe that hell is the final destination of all good resolutions. Therefore, if we were to follow the good resolutions we make, it is easy to be seen where they would land us. Hence, we don't follow 'em.

If, however, you feel that you must swear off something tomorrow, swear off those things that you can't get any more, thus making a virtue of necessity. To illustrate our point, we have put to verse our own set, to-wit, as follows, viz: Tomorrow I will resolute To bathe no more my ruby snout In foamy steins of suds. I'll swear off smoking rickie weeds, And cut off from my bill of feeds. Such things as beans and spuds.

And why such resolutions make? I choose that I cannot break. The reason's plain to see. I can forego these things, because, Twixt Hoover, H. C. L. and laws, There is no choice for me.

Loosen Up. There may be a wound that a dollar will heal. There may be a pain that will cure. Then "cover the top" with your money old man, You have it to spare, I am sure, In the days yet to come.

How'll you "square" with your kid When no battle-scar you can show? You can tell him at least That your dollar was there. 'Twill comfort him greatly, I know. —SILVER GRAY.

Happy New Year. The New Year is not without its calamities—chief of which are the great war and the Pendleton Bulldogger.—Weston Leader.

We will concede that both the war and the Bulldogger have been calamitous for Kernal Wood, the war because it has made his title a hollow mockery and the Bulldogger because as a public duty, it has exposed him for the empty ranter that he is. The kernel can rest assured that the war will be continued until the world is safe for democracy and that the Bulldogger will not suspend until this county has been rid of his pernicious presence.

OVER THE NORTHWEST

Elks Aid Red Cross. PORTLAND, Dec. 31.—Portland Elks are going to usher the old year out tonight by a determined campaign to increase Red Cross membership roll here. Eighteen hundred "Bills" will go over the top in a four hour drive having as its objective 25,000 memberships by midnight. Steamboat whistles will announce the opening of the campaign and the police and fire departments will assist the Elks in the work.

Cards and Bible. VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 31.—A marked deck of cards as well as a Bible figured in church services here last night. Dr. E. L. Benedict of the first M. E. church made a demonstration of the futility of playing with professional gamblers in a talk to the soldiers. He used a "cold deck" taken in a Bremerton raid.

Troops Are Safe. NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Dec. 31.—Anxiety over the fate of troops from this section believed to have been in Halifax at the time of the disaster passed today when cablesgrams were received announcing the arrival of the artillery unit in England. The troops sailed just before the blast, it is believed.

Fighters Guests of Honor. PORTLAND, Dec. 31.—Soldiers and sailors visiting Portland will be guests of honor tonight at the public auditorium when the city of Portland holds its annual community singing watch party. Mayor Baker is in charge of the program and well known musicians will give selections between the rendition of patriotic and home songs by the audience.

Seeking Oil Wells. ROSEBURG, Dec. 31.—Douglas county as an oil producing district may be one of the possibilities of the new year. Operations were started in Camas valley today with a big standard well drilling outfit on the farm of D. C. Jones. Nearby farms have also been leased by Jones, who refuses to state who is with him in the search for oil. Jones states, however, that his associates are ready to spend $10,000 in development work, making a thorough test of the valley. Should oil be struck in Camas valley, operations in the Flournoy district are expected.

To Wear Service Badges. SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 31.—Beginning tomorrow practically all employees in the northwest shipyards will be wearing "war service badges." Persons found around shipyards who cannot show their right there by display of the badge are liable to arrest by federal authorities as spies. Such badges also show the men are serving their country even though they are not in uniform.

HOUSEHOLD

Notes on Making Soup. All bones, roots and materials from which the flavor is to be extracted should be cooked long and slowly. Not boiled, but simmered.

Dried beans, peas and lentils need to be soaked before cooking, the two former for twelve hours, lentils for one to three hours. This is to make them swell. These vegetables can be boiled, not simmered. Tough or old roots and stems should be grated before using for thick soups. This makes them pass more easily through the sieve and does not wear out the wires. All thick soups should be rubbed through a sieve with a spoon. Failing this use a potato masher or a colander, or mash the pulp smooth with fork and spoon. Thick soups require to be bound to make them smooth and pleasant to eat. A little flour is used in peace time; instead of this we now bind them thus: Take half an ounce of crushed tapioca, oatmeal or saw, soak it in half a pint of milk, or milk and water, for one hour. Then cook the milk and tapioca very slowly till the latter swells (about half an hour); it will then be ready to add to the vegetable stock. If you have no milk use a little of the stock itself. Be careful to wash all materials thoroughly; to use clean and covered pans; to add water if the liquid boils away. Avoid ready-made sauce out of bottles. Thought and practice in cookery will save work and money.

era, that make the native cow look like goats. One of these cows was imported into Korea by a missionary but he had difficulty in getting his cow to tend the beast. The servant was fresh from his country home where he had heard little and seen less. He took the cow for an elephant and fled before her. In Korea the little native cow is a petted darling that has been indulged to such an extent that, incredible as it seems, she refuses to eat grass unless it has been boiled. It is not unusual in very cold weather to see a pet cow clothed in a thick, warm blanket, while the children of the family shiver in their cotton garments—and often very fed of them.

CHINESE COWS WILL NOT YIELD MILK TO MAN

Animals Used Only for Draft Purposes—Koreans' Pet. Native Cows Eat Only Boiled Grass. Americans who travel through the interior of China greatly miss "Cow's Milk and Her Butter," as a Japanese sign puts it. The people of the orient use little of either. Mare's milk is sold to invalids at a high price because the Chinese believe that it is the source of great bodily strength. But the natives use cows solely for draft purposes, and, having earned her living for years in this manner, Lowsy stands upon her dignity when Americans demand milk of her. To her offering she will give it, but not to man if by any possibility she can avoid it. In Japan there are now a few American bred cattle, owned by foreign-
