EXAMINATIONS WILL FOLLOW SOON AFTER THE QUESTIONNAIRES

Men in Class I Will Undergo Physical Tests in 5 Days After Reporting.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 4.—A man who is placed in Class I under the new draft regulations will not have any long, tiresome wait before undergoing physical examination to determine his fitness for military service.

Just as soon as his classification has been finally determined by the local board, following receipt of his questionnaire, the board will mail him a notice to appear for physical examination within five days of the mailing of the notice, at a place to be designated by the board.

And the registrant will not be kept in suspense as to the result of this examination. As soon as he has been examined he will then and there be told by the examining physician whether he is or is not physically qualified for military service.

The fact that a man is not considered physically qualified for active military service does not mean necessarily that the government will not draft him. Provision is made for the examining physician to report if he considers such a registrant qualified for limited military service in some specific capacity, and he will be subject to call for such service.

Even if the examining physician is in doubt as to whether the registrant is physically qualified or disqualified for military service, he is required to report the registrant definitely one way or the other, and to notify him of his conclusion. If the physician is in doubt, he may request the local board to send the registrant before one of the medical advisory boards for an examining re-examination.

On the other hand, if the registrant himself is not satisfied with the conclusion of the examining physician, he may request to be sent before a medical advisory board for re-examination. But he must make this request on the day he is examined and informed of the result, or he will lose the right of such appeal.

Registrants who make no claim for deferred classification, and therefore were automatically placed in Class I, will receive their notification within a very short time to appear for physical examination. Others who asked for deferred classification but have been placed in Class I will receive their notification as soon as their cases are finally determined.

Men in deferred classifications will be physically examined after the next preceding class has been exhausted by call into military service.

WAR HAS MADE SOUTH VALUE NEGRO, HE SAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—"If the war has accomplished nothing else but a constructive character, it has awakened the south to the necessity of giving the negro a square deal," said J. G. Lennon of Savannah, Ga., yesterday afternoon at the seventh annual conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in the 13th Regiment Armory.

"We shall see less race discrimination in the south hereafter," concluded the speaker, "because the migration of negroes to northern industrial plants—particularly munition factories—has demonstrated to southerners how dependent the south is on negro labor. The south is now willing to do almost anything within reason to keep us there."

Mr. Lennon says that one of the first signs of a new order of things is the traveling of a more equitable distribution of school funds, notably in Savannah.

"Negro parents," he declared, "are determined that their children shall have the advantages of public education. They know they can get this in the north if they must, but they prefer to get it in the south if they can."

George B. Vashon of East St. Louis, Mo., illustrated the present unfair attitude toward the negro by saying that if he were to cross the Mexican border and suffer violence the United States government would call upon Mexico City to make an accounting, but that on this side of the border he could be lynched and the mob would be all probably suffer little, if any, punishment for the crime, and his family would be ignored.

The discussion at today's session will be "Discrimination in Public Places in the South."

An ounce of confidence is one's self better than a pound of confidence in others.

KILLERS HAVE CORNER IN MUTTON

PORTLAND, Jan. 4.—The sheep the past season to sell fewer, even supply situation at Pacific Northwest than normal. This means only one thing, that the sheep industry is coming back. Southward the heavy shipments of sheep and lambs to the east side country among sheep owners from western states during the last season, total arrivals there were decreased. For instance a recent mail advised from there says: "Receipts of sheep and lambs at the western markets east of the Rockies for the year 1917 are going to be a few more than one million and a half less than we had last year. Few people, unless thoroughly posted as to supplies, know of this low shortage. The packers' buy has been less than in a good many years, in fact we have here that during the range season when the feeder competition was so strong that packers had hard work to make any money, but since the range season closed and the fed lambs have been marketed, it has been difficult and has been practically a price market. While this has been a pitiful, and our prices for all classes of sheep and lambs, and while the range men had secured higher prices for sheep and lambs than ever before, all this you never see in your more money than formerly. Thus, for instance, we used to have a good lamb crop last spring made plenty of money, but the packers only had left a crop of lambs and are really to better off than if they had a full lamb crop and had them at 5 to 8 cents a pound less. Expenses have greatly increased, all the hay crop is short, and feed of all kinds has been high. In the winter's outlook, there have been more sheep and ewe lambs wintered this year than in many years past, but they are not so many. We can still sell lambs at 5 to 6 cents a pound lower than they have been selling and make money, in fact, make more money than when they sell at present prices. Not only that, but feeders, the killing year, no doubt, will be on a lower level, and the lambs will be a better sort of lambs. General situation is steady. In general there was a steady situation indicated in the North Portland yards for the day with a small supply. Prices in effect for lambs for this day in three years shows: Table with columns for Year, Today, and Price per 100 lbs. (e.g., 1916, 1917, 1918, 118.50, 125.00, 127.25).
