BEAUTIFUL SEPARATE SKIRTS

Nowadays, the separate skirt is more than a garment for stormy days and rough wear; real artistic thought and effort are used in its creation.

This spring, more than ever exquisite materials add to the attractiveness of the models themselves.

In the silks, taffeta and satin plaids, heavy crepe de chine, radium taffeta and Baronette satin lend their lustrous surfaces.

In woolen materials, besides the solid colors in gabardine, serges, poplins and chudah cloth, bright plaids with cleverly placed pockets are readily adaptable for street and sports wear.

BEN JACKSON SAYS FELLOWS IN FRANCE HAVE ALL COMFORTS

Ben Jackson, the Dayton, Wash., farm boy who made such a reputation as a wrestler that he pitted himself against Stanislaus Zhyseckin in this city a few years ago, is one soldier who doesn't think the government was negligent in providing for the troops at Camp Mills. He is now in France in the aviation department of the army and the following interesting letter was sent to his sister:

Some place in France, Feb. 6.—My Dear Sister Laura.—I received your letter today and was more than glad to hear from you and now you want me to tell you all about France. That is impossible. France is too great a country to be told about in one letter, and besides I am very poor at writing but I will do the best I can.

This is the most beautiful country one can imagine, but they have suffered terribly from the war. In spite of nearly four years of terrible fighting France is still a wonderful land, and the way they farm every foot, not an inch is left in waste. The houses are all built of stone and cement, no wooden buildings, and I may say that the barns are built warm and stronger than our houses in America, and while there is nothing wasted the people have plenty to eat. I have been out to the farm houses and had several meals and I find that the cooking is extra fine, but never the less France suffers the pangs of war, and there are a lot of very pitiful sights.

Evidence of Hun Cruelty

Everywhere you go you see people in mourning and the shastly means the Huns have used to exterminate France is beyond description. The Huns have taken the French prisoners and inoculated them in all kinds of venereal disease and then transferred them back to France and of course the effect was the same in France as it would be in any place, especially when all the doctors are at the front. This is certainly a crime that no nation can ever be forgiven for. It is not only a crime against the present generation and society but a far reaching crime, one that will be inherited for generations to come, and as for the respect that they have shown in many cases to the women of the Allies, is worse than anything the Indians ever thought of. The "spite" baby, as they call them, certainly speaks for the crimes that have been committed against civilization.

To Hell With Culture

To hell with German culture, and to hell with German peace. That would be a terrible thing right now, for a peace proposal of any kind would only mean more than ever, and just a breathing spell for "Old Jerry." We expect to get him no rest and we know that the next three months will tell the tale. He is massing his forces for a terrible drive. If successful for him it must be done at once. If we hold him, which no doubt we will, then the jig is up with him. He may drag along for a long time, we expect that, but we know he is going to die hard, but his Prussian militarism must, and shall.

In spite of all France has undergone, you never hear one whimper out of them, and you never will for a Frenchman is not afraid to die.

By the way, I got a clipping from Helen today, which riled me all up. It was cut from the Union and was the protest the Governor of Oregon and Mayor of Portland has made to the War Department in regard to the conditions at Camp Mills, and I can assure you that there was nothing to it. The protest was scandalous.

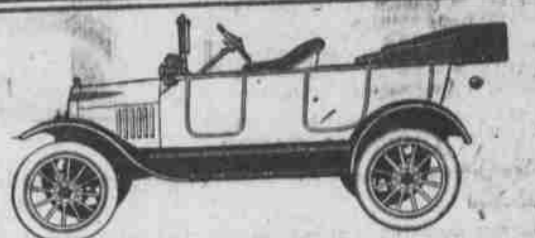

Gov't. Doesn't Make Weather

It was true we had a great storm at Camp Mills, wind, rain, and snow, but these things have happened before, and the Government was never held responsible for them. As I understand it, the Government has nothing to do with the weather. At any rate we had a storm which blew down some tons, but not very many. If they had been tightened as ordered they never would have blown down. We had the orders several hours before that the storm was coming. For the Government instrument registered storm. We all went to bed, and here she came. My squad was in a bad place as the ground was much lower there, and the water had to drain off through our tents. I finally got up, and lit a candle. The water was just beginning to run through our tents. I had the men put their clothing on a pile of wood up in the tent and then I said, "Let her buck," and we all went back to sleep. Next morning when we awoke there was 4 or 5 inches of water in our tent and still raining, and you know it can't drain so very fast as Camp Mills is on nice level ground. Some of the fellows acted like babies and went to private homes and churches and were taken in. The people at Long Island were fine to us. They never let a stone unturned. After the storm we had mud. Strange too, such things never happened in Washington or Oregon after a big fall. Of course Wilson is to blame for this mud, but so long as he is getting blamed for something else, more won't hurt him, so we will lay all on to him, or Mr. Baker. It doesn't matter which just so someone gets the blame. By the way, we have mud here after rains, and lots of it. Who is to blame for that?

O, yes, the wood. You see it was like this. We had to pack wood about a quarter of a mile, and some of the boys were too lazy to do this, so they had no fires. I'll tell you one thing, my squad wasn't too lazy to pack wood if a man would rather freeze than carry wood, all right. We should have named the war department for not sending the mothers along to look after their darlings.

Have Plenty of Clothes

About our clothes, we will give Lieut. Reynolds the blame. All he would argue was was one pair of high shoes, two pairs of medium heavy woolen socks, 2 pairs of under to his shirts, 2 pairs of pants, two shoes, one overcoat, slicker, 2 pairs of knickerbockers and a hat. That is all he would give, and the the Red Cross gave us each a sweater, scarf and pair of wristlets, and since we have had it in

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clear, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of nervous wrecks, "run-downs," "strain fasts," and pessulists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons. Thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, indigestion, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which costs but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.
