THE CLARION OF DUTY.

Young men of the nation, up, up and away,
The clarion of duty is sounding today.
Your brothers are calling from over the sea,
"Take arms for your country, the land of the free."

Young men of the nation, the privilege is rare,
The fate of mankind on your shoulders to bear;
The axes to come shall your glory proclaim,
The free of the future shall herald your name.

Young men of the nation, on you we rely,
Wherever the star-spangled banner shall fly,
To carry to victory, in freedom's great cause,
Humanity's hope in democracy's laws.

Young men of the nation, the despot must fall,
To you has been given the great of all;
The parts in this mighty world drama to play—
Young men of the nation, up, up and away.

—C. E. Rosk.

WHERE THIS COUNTRY IS LAX

SENATOR OVERMAN'S statement about German spy activities in airplane plants should awaken congress to the nation's need of more drastic action against spies and disloyalists.

The United States is too lax in dealing with spies and in dealing with those who think and talk sedition. Spies who are caught should be executed and seditionists should be locked up for the duration of the war. There is probably not a community in the country that does not have a few German or pro German who properly belong in jail or internment camps. It is safer for them and safer for the nation that they be confined during the war.

If congress will put more teeth into the espionage law and demand that it be enforced to the limit a long step will have been taken towards speeding up war preparations in this country.

SAVING AN HOUR

THE daylight saving plan to be entered upon Saturday night will be an interesting experiment in several ways, the psychological feature being one of the most important aspects of the problem.

By having all clocks turned ahead an hour we will rise an hour earlier in the morning yet the clock will still point to the same old hour. How will the plan appeal to people. Will you know the difference? If you do not then you are more subject to the clock than to the sun or to Morpheus. If you wish to sleep on the opposite will be true and it will require time to make you accustomed to the new regime.

As to the workings of the plan time will tell but the results should be good. We will be using a good morning hour that is now wasted and will have more daylight for recreation in the evening. If people retire earlier than at present, as may be assumed, they will, there will be a saving in light and fuel.

GET YOUR COAL EARLY.

PENDLETON people can help the nation as well as themselves by heeding the advice to buy next winter's coal at an early date. The fuel administration is urging such action and it is good advice.

Unless the miraculous happens, which it is folly to count on, we will be in the thick of the war next winter, and while we on the coast are in easier circumstances ordinarily in the matter of coal, it is the part of wisdom to discount all advantages and act as if they did not exist.

The fuel administration's warning is not founded so much on the fear of an increased price next winter, although that is not unlikely, but upon the possibility that coal may not be had, and on the necessity of keeping the mines going at their fullest capacity all the time. Unless the coal is taken from the mines, the mines are compelled to close or to work with fewer men, and the result will be that next fall, when the whole country is clamoring for coal, we will not have enough miners to produce it or cars to transport it.

Order your coal early, thus equalizing the work for the coal miners and at the same time protecting yourself and family.

CONSERVATION OF CREDIT
ELIMINATION OF NON-ESSENTIAL CREDIT REQUIRED DURING THE WAR.

The Twelfth Federal Reserve Bank has sent a circular notice to all banks in the district, announcing that it will look with disfavor on all non-essential credit paper during the progress of the war. Non-essential means of course non-war essential.

"Preparations are being made for government regulation of the government's financing, intended to restrict or discriminate against credit for non-essential purposes," reads the letter. "The restriction or limitation of credit for other non-essential purposes is quite as necessary and may, at any time, be placed under government regulation, but this discrimination should be immediately initiated and voluntarily applied by banks whose opportunity for such discrimination is immediate. In order to meet the requirements of the government we must have conservation of credit as well as conservation of food. When this war crisis is past bankers may again properly say, 'It is my first duty to care for my customers.'"
