MAJOR M'DONNELL DIES IN NEW YORK

FORMER COMMANDER OF OREGON NATIONAL GUARD SUC-CUMBS TO ILLNESS.

Was Attached to Artillery Unit; Was Prominent in Portland; Body to be Brought Home.

PORTLAND, April 4.—Major Charles E. McDonnell, former commander of the Oregon National Guard, past exalted ruler of the Portland Lodge of Elks, No. 142, and known throughout military and fraternal circles in the Pacific Northwest, died yesterday at the Rockefeller Institute, New York, after a long illness. Instructions were telegraphed to send the body to Portland for burial. The Elks will have charge of the funeral services.

Major McDonnell had been attached to an artillery unit of the United States army, in active service for some time previous to his illness, in the vicinity of New York. Some time ago he was taken ill and it was thought he was well on the road to recovery.

One month ago a letter came from him to members of the Portland Lodge of Elks, containing the information that he had passed the worst stage of his illness and was able to leave the hospital within a few days. It is understood from the brief telegraphic advice received yesterday that there was a relapse that required Major McDonnell to return to his hospital bed, where he at length passed away. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. D. McDonnell; a brother, A. J. McDonnell, a sister Mrs. O. E. Fletcher, and a niece, Miss M. C. McDonald, all of Portland.

Major McDonnell was born in Quebec, Canada, November 12, 1871. He had lived in Portland for the past 23 years and was long prominent in the Oregon National Guard, where he rendered valuable service. He served with the guard in the Philippine campaign, and upon his return from the islands he was elected county assessor, a position he filled for one term.
