Foe Plans to Deplete Re-

(HENRY WOOD.) WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 22.—By constantly extending drives into new sectors, the Germans unquestionably hope to exhause all the French reserves which are alteady helping the British armies clear to the North Sea. These tactics make it imperative that America rush troops as fast as possible. There are numerous indications that the Germans are preparing a fresh drive at Amiens and Arras, harmonising with their system of exploiting drives where successful and abandoning where they are failures. From the Allette river to the North Sea only Allette river to the North Sea only to offensive sectors remain. These are between Amiens and Arras and between Nicuport and Ypres.
