Former Local Boy Writes of Quaint Country Life in France.

Interesting bits of description from a quaint old French country village are contained in a letter just received by Oral and Venice Callison from Ernest Leon Crockett, who is in France with the Tenth Canadian Battalion, British Expeditionary forces. The boy is a former Pendleton high school student and doubtless there will be many who will be interested in his letter, written on May 11, which follows: "Dear Girls—I am still burdening the globe with my unnecessary presence. I really don't believe the Huns have my number at all. My pal and I have decided to write and inform Hindenburg that we are just across the line. The main trouble is that Hincin won't tackle the Canadians in the offensive. So far they have not touched a Canadian division so we are figuring on moving front just to get a chance at the bugger. "Now, in between times we have 'off' periods in which we explore the surrounding country. These explorations are both interesting and amusing. My partner is a long lanky West Virginia mountaineer with a lean and hungry look—but he doesn't think too much, which makes him a little less dangerous than Cassius. He cannot get the idea of French money. One day he and I stopped at a wretched estaminet (coffee and smoking house) and he purchased some light wine. Madame brought back the change of a two franc note and he attempted to count it. He gave me a miserable look and I went to the rescue. He spread the collection out on the table—two silver francs, the English shilling, a Mexican dollar, jammed off by some U. S. militiaman, some English pennies and French ten centimes; also an Italian ten centesimo. After he counted it all he found he was fifty centimes short. This we found in a French note patched on one side with postage stamps and on the other side by a Hull Durham sock with a stout label. Since then he is the bank and I am the cashier. "We are billeted in a barn which was built in 1891. An oak framework plastered with mud and straw has withstood the storms of a century while recent more modern buildings nearby are smashed by a single bomb or shell from Heineke. The courtyard is a square formed by barns and the home all of which are connected, and pigs here; also the family peacocks promiscuously through the whole domain. In the center of the courtyard is that always present manure pile, sending forth an unearthly stench to which I can never get accustomed, for I smelled the balmy breezes from the Blue mountains of Oregon for eight years and never will forget them. For all this filthiness the French peasant folk are very hospitable and do what they can for us. If it were not for the stinking of the 'big ones' we would think this little spot a paradise. A little valley with a small stream running through, bounded by wooded hills and the valley one level stretch of lawn from one end to the other. Everything is green fields and Hawthorne hedges. In the gardens the orchards bloom and the quaint houses white washed make a pretty scene in the landscape. "Just after reveille in the morning we can hear the village herder blowing his home made horn and just as we tumble out for breakfast the road is lined with the cattle and sheep from each farm house. The herder then takes them to the hills and brings them back at the close of day. The farmers here have their homes in a little community together and go out every day to their farms and the home coming at dusk is a weary, but joyful procession. "I have seen little city life as yet but I think I will enjoy it better than the rural for I always had a fancy for the metropolis myself. "I can't tell you of what we are doing but when I hit the trail for Oregon I'll stop at my old home town and weave a few yarns for the benefit of the girls of the I. O. P. H. Club by the looks of things the club will be disorganized both by time here and circumstances there before I return, but I'll be there anyway. "Your wandering friend,"

Loss of Appetite is commonly gradual; one dish after another is set aside. It is one of the first indications that the system is running down, and there is nothing else so good for it as Hood's Sarsaparilla—the best of all tonics.

No Compensation for Broken Wooden Leg
SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—A man who breaks his wooden leg is not entitled to compensation for the loss of a leg or the loss of a foot. It was held by the State Industrial Commission in the case of A. H. Stewart against an oil company.

Thirty years ago Stewart lost a leg in a railroad wreck. He whittled out a wooden leg which he used for a leg up until last August, when, while in the oil company's employ, he fell from a motor car and broke the peg-leg and injured his knee. Stewart took the splinters of his leg to A. A. McDonald, chairman of the industrial commission, and filed a claim for 175 weeks' compensation, as is provided by state law for the loss of a leg. The commission decided that the injured man could not collect 175 weeks' compensation for the loss of a leg or for the loss of the foot thirty years ago. "He was entitled to some pay for the injury to the knee, however, it was decided, so he was given the difference between the loss of a leg and the loss of a foot, or compensation for twenty-five weeks.

Objector Given Ten Years for Conscience
CAMP GRANT, Ill., June 11.—Edward J. Heath, who gave his home at 2742 West Harrison street, Chicago, has been found guilty by a court martial here of failure to comply with military rules, and his punishment fixed at ten years in Leavenworth federal prison.

Heath is said to have had pro-German leanings and claimed to be a "conscientious objector." When he came to Camp Grant two months ago he was assigned to company F, 2454 Infantry. He steadfastly refused to don uniform, and has put in most of his time working about the campment as a prisoner. He has been held at the 2454 Infantry guardhouse and is said to have attempted suicide there by drinking chloroform.

Transport Made Hun Sub Hit for Bottom
NEW YORK, June 11.—U-boats attempting a blockade of the American coast are ineffectually held. A Brazilian steamer arriving at an Atlantic port reported it was pursued off the Jersey coast but a United States transport opened fire, making the pirate submerge.

Some of the Finar Del Rio crew insisted the submarine attacking them was accompanied by a 6000-ton steamer painted light gray. This is possibly the mother ship or a captured freighter which the Germans are leisurely looting.

U. S. Boys Abroad in Fine Shape, Reported
ST. PAUL, June 11.—"Tell the folks at home they will never be ashamed of us." This message was given by American soldiers to the American labor union returning from Europe and was read before the annual American labor federation this afternoon. "American mothers need feel no worry over the watchful care taken of their boys," said the report, which highly praised the morality and morale of American soldiers.

The commission's report said "American soldiers as sanitary engineers, were sent to France to stop a pestilence. They are thoroughly capable of doing what there is to do. We left the American army full of confidence and pride. Germany's greatest antagonist is the determination of a free people to remain free."

ACID WASTE BAN STOPS PAPER MILLS
WASHINGTON, June 11.—Declaring that the section of the rivers and harbors bill prohibiting the throwing of acid waste into streams will put every pulp paper mill in the country out of business, representatives today urged the senate and house conference committee to eliminate the provision. The house struck the section from the bill at the request of the war department, which claimed it would interfere with operations at munition plants, but the senate restored it.

AUTO LEFT IN GEAR MISSES RIVER BUT HITS FIVE PERSONS
AMITY, June 6.—The student body of the Amity high school held its farewell party on the banks of the Yamhill river, about three miles west of here, Friday evening. About 11 o'clock the merry-makers prepared to return home. An automobile had been left in gear and, when cranked, plunged, driverless, down the embankment to the water's edge, then turned nearly at a right angle and headed directly for the party lounging on the beach. Professor R. D. Tins was hit and dragged several feet. John Campbell, Arliss Jones, Laura Ross and Oscar Richards were run over and severely bruised, the latter sustaining a scalp wound which required several stitches.

SHIRINERS OUST BOSS
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 7.—Recommendations requesting the elimination of all intoxicating liquors from buildings while ceremonial sessions are held by subordinate lodges were adopted today by the Imperial council of the Mystic Shrine in annual session here.

General Sir Henry Wilson, chief of staff of the British Army, is ready for the new drive he believes the Germans will make against the army on the northern front. American soldiers have gone to this section and are now brigaded with British troops ready for the defense.
