64 THOUSANDTHS OF ONE PER CENT OF U. S. MANPOWER IS LOST

Year's Total for War Will Now be Followed by Far Greater Loss.

By CARL D. GROAT (United Press Staff Correspondent).

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The nation must steel itself for the shock of the first great casualty lists, according to officers today.

These lists, while not disproportionate to the scope of recent fighting, will be far greater than recent totals, and will bring the war home to America as nothing else, those officers point out.

American casualties for the entire war, to the end of July, totaled slightly more than 14,000, so far as announced.

Compared with the French and British, the American losses will be small.

Seven divisions and two odd regiments are now engaged. Counting replacement units, it is likely that more than 200,000 Americans have been in action.

While casualties normally run only 2 and 3 per cent, it is regarded as quite possible that the dead, missing, wounded and prisoners in a conflict as serious as the Solomon Islands battle will be 10 per cent or more.

In a little more than a year of war Uncle Sam used up—killed in action, died of disease, wounded and missing—just sixty-four thousandths of one per cent of our available man power.
