28 YEARS AGO

(From the East Oregonian, November 11, 1890.)

Mayor Van B. De Lashmott of Portland, was in Pendleton today.

Another pow-wow will be held tomorrow by the Indians to consult regarding their lands. It is said they want to keep the mountains to themselves for pasturage and are dissatisfied with the lives of diminished reservation.

Miss Flora McRae, daughter of County Commissioner McRae, was in Pendleton this morning on her way to La Grande where she will attend as bridesmaid the wedding of Miss Anne McDonald and County Clerk Oliver of Union county.

NAVAL PROGRAM FOR AFTER WAR IS CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—War and peace developments to date fail to give definite promise of a limitation of armament after the war.

This was taken to be one of the meanings behind Secretary Daniels' request for a new three-year navy building program of 10 super-dreadnaughts, six battle cruisers and 140 small craft at an estimated cost of $600,000,000.

While Daniels is a strong advocate of limitation of armament after the war, he holds that while the war proceeds it is well to look out for the future. He pointed out in making the new appropriations that they would tend to allow fears that the major ships were being overlooked in the present haste for destroyers and other anti-submarine craft.

This new battle craft will be the best word looking ship construction, with new ideas in drive, fire control and other phases.

20,000 OFFICERS TO BE TRAINED

CAMP LEWIS, Nov. 7.—Several hundred enlisted men from Camp Lewis will attend the officers' training school which will open at Camp Fremont, Cal., December 1, it was said here today.

Twenty thousand men are to be given training at Camp Fremont as prospective officers, according to a telegram from the adjutant general of the army to Major General Joseph D. Litch, commander of this camp.

According to this telegram, some camps require that enlisted men be in service for a period of time which often is three months before they are considered eligible for the training schools. This practice is ordered dis-

1888, upon the death of the then emperor, Frederick III, father of the kaiser who has abdicated, Frederick III reigned for but three months. He took the throne upon the death of his father William I, who had been proclaimed German emperor at Versailles, France, at the close of the German victory over France in the Franco-Prussian war.

William I had become king of Prussia in 1861 upon the death of his elder brother, Frederick William IV who was childless. William I was born in 1797 and consequently was 64 years of age on becoming king and was not made emperor until 10 years later, at the age of 74.

William I gained great prestige in Germany just prior to and during the Franco-Prussian war. Bismarck was his chancellor and held a position of vastly more power than the chancellors have had in recent years. Bismarck was virtually the head of the German empire, William I having given him full sway. Upon the death of William I the then crown prince, Frederick, assumed the throne. He was in ill health due to a throat trouble and lived but three months. William II then ascended the throne and at the start apprehension was held throughout Europe from the fact the new emperor did not possess the liberal spirit of his father but possessed a strong leaning towards militarism. After a time this impression was reduced somewhat but later events, culminating in the present war proved that the early day view of the kaiser was correct.

In 1878 an attempt was made upon the life of the then Emperor William I by an assassin. General Graht was in Berlin at the time and with others expressed regret at the deed. In a conversation between Graht and Bismarck the latter is reported as having said of William I: "He is quite distinguished from those born in so high a position, at least most of them. You know that people of his rank, born in the purple, come to believe themselves different from their fellow creatures. They attach little importance to the wishes and feelings of others."

Ten years later when William II took the throne the words of Bismarck to Graht came true when the new kaiser humbled the Iron Chancellor by so depriving him of power that Bismarck resigned.

The island of Heligoland, the great German naval base about which so much has been heard during this war was secured by Germany in the second year of the last kaiser's reign. The island was secured through treaty with England and in compensation England was given the German consent to an English protectorate over Zanzibar.

The kaiser has always been known as a man of almost insane egotism. He evidently dreamed from the start of world domination and doubtless the acquiring of Heligoland was one of the first steps in the program that has finally been the complete undoing of Germany and the downfall of the kaiser.

FREEDOM CAME FROM WITHOUT

ON Saturday Chancellor Max of Germany said in a proclamation: "The victory for which many hoped has not been granted us but the German people have won a greater victory for it has conquered itself and its belief in the justice of might." But the chancellor does not give credit where credit is due. The internal revolt in Germany was made possible by force of allied arms. Not until German militarism had been conquered were the German liberals able to assert themselves. The German people owe their new freedom to forces without not within their empire. America's two million soldiers in France have been the real liberators of the fatherland.

SHE COULD NOT STAND OR WORK

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health and Stopped Her Pains.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it that at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework. I was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the credit for health restored as did Mrs. Kimble.

For helpful suggestions in regard to such ailments women are asked to write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., 253 West Race St., Portland, Ind. Thousands of American women give this famous root and herb remedy the credit for health restored as did Mrs. Kimble.

DEATH CLAIMS CHILD SHORTLY AFTER FATHER

OREGON CITY, Nov. 11.—Owen Busch, two-year-old son of Mrs. John Busch, and the late John Busch, of West Linn, died in the city Sunday after a brief illness. The child was first afflicted with influenza which culminated with spinal meningitis, and the little fellow's condition was critical at the time he was taken ill a few days after the death of his father, who died with Spanish influenza, and was buried a week ago last Sunday.

The remains of the little fellow were taken by the grief-stricken mother Monday to Salem, and from that place to the Hopewell cemetery, where the internment took place and laid to rest besides the remains of the father.

Such offers of peace as Germany gives afford even zealous pacifists a question of the cross.
