DRAFT COST LOW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—America, when the armistice was signed was getting soldiers at the lowest cost per man in the history of the country. According to recent testimony of Gen. Crowder before the House Appropriations committee, it costs Uncle Sam just $1.75 to induct a draftee and put him aboard a train headed for camp.

Contrasted to this figure, Crowder gave the committee the cost of obtaining a volunteer during the last 3 years. In 1914 this was $24.48 per man; in 1915 it dropped to $19.14 jumping to $22.95 in 1917.

WAR'S VICTORIES NOT ALL ON BATTLEFIELD

Criminals in Great Britain are Making Good.

(By United Press)
LONDON, Oct. 13 (By Mail).—Criminals in Great Britain are making good.

Since the war began the number of inmates in British institutions has fallen off about 50 percent.

Two things are responsible, according to Sir Evelyn Ruggles-Brise, chairman of the Prison Commissioners and Director of Convict Prisons for England and Wales. They are:

First—The War;

Second—A concentrated policy of "purifying" young criminals.

Fifty local penal institutions which held 14,252 in pre-war days, now possess only 7,355.

Of 46 penal institutions 29 have been closed since the beginning of the war.

The war is partly responsible for the decrease, in that it absorbed the great mass of unemployed into usefulness in the army and navy.

The system of heading off the young criminal and instructing him how to make himself useful to humanity is a forceful check.

Another aid is the government policy of employment which aids unemployed to find work.

The burglar and drunkard are becoming obsolete.

Before the war 2,300 burglaries or house breakings were committed annually. Now there are only 400.

The number of drunkards has decreased from 12,000 annually to 3,700.

Many convicts are serving in the British army. Of course only those of good behavior get in. Two of them have been decorated.

One working on the western battlefield, volunteered to give up some blood to save a Tommy's life. Later he developed blood poison, but recovered and then joined up with a bombing squadron. His record shows he broke prison 4 times.

The honor system is being employed here successfully, as it has been in the United States. Prison officials are satisfied it works, though occasionally some cannot resist the temptation to escape.

Convicts joining the army and navy, are not known among their fellow soldiers or sailors to have a prison record. Their commanders are aware of the fact but only for his private information.

No convicts convicted of the same offense, are sent to the same regiment or ship.

COMBS CANYON WILL ANSWER WHEAT CALL

The government has asked the farmers of Umatilla county to increase the acreage in wheat in the county for 1919 over the season of 1918 by 170,000 acres and should they fall short in meeting this request it will be through no fault of the farmers of the Combs-Canyon section.

This section fell way short of a normal crop the present year, but the farmers are in no way discouraged and are seeding every possible acre this fall. Many of them on fields where the crop was unusually short in some cases hardly paying harvesting expenses are treating the land as similar fallow and seeding it up fall wheat.

This together with the large acreage of summer fallow and newly plowed grass land, will make a greatly increased area in wheat for that part of the county.

Other parts of Umatilla county are also reporting increased acreage in wheat, but the greatest increase so far reported is from the above section.

SAYS WAR END WILL ELIMINATE WASTE

BY FRANK FOX
Author of "The British Army at War" (Written for the United Press.)
LONDON, Nov. 13.—Amid the measureless waste and loss caused by the war it is of interest and of comfort to note the discussion in all quarters of the world on methods of economy and of higher efficiency in industry.

The industrial life of any of the civilized nations will provide a score of instances where wise and fruitful economies have sprung out of war scarcity.

Every city used to waste the major part of its used paper.

Nowadays spotted paper is almost universally collected and recycled.

On newspapers and torn wrapping papers are collected for the fills, whence they reappear as cart-ridden paper. In the coming times of peace they will reappear as packing paper, and the forests of the world will be spared part of the old tax on them by the economy which the war has taught us.

In the United States, a country of such great natural wealth that extravagance is almost inevitable, there is a movement afoot to utilize the immense heaps of "slack" coal. It is pointed out that countries poorer in coal make this slack into fuel briquettes. The United States is learning now to do likewise.

Works Both Ways.

The utilization of rice-waste, of old tin, of old leather, of flax-waste, are instances in point. In another direction the world is winning great advantages from the superior organization and concentration of industrial undertakings. A current proposal in Great Britain is for an effective re-organization of the business of electric supply, by which, it is estimated, millions of tons of coal can be saved annually. The proposal is a direct outcome of research in the problems of production due to the war. There are many similar ones. Humanity is going to benefit one day from some or all of them. But on the whole we have derived no greater economic benefit from the re-examination of our industrial life induced by the war, than that which has come from the better understanding of the land question. In a spirit of wild waste, which is only now coming to be understood and deplored, the older countries were gradually allowing their lands to pass out of cultivation, trusting to make up their food supplies from the exploitation of virgin lands. Before the war the effect of this was becoming felt by the general advance of bond prices, especially of meat.

Now, as a consequence of the war, the land is beginning to be more wisely regarded. Even in the United States a comparatively new country, the land had begun to pass out of cultivation; but it is now knowing the plow again because of war needs.

closed and they are fined. It stands to reason that since the war these bonds will be worthless, because the provinces will be unable to take them up.

EXPLORES SAVE AFTER FIVE YEARS IN ARCTIC

After five years exploration of the barren wastes of the far north, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, discoverer of the blond Eskimos and five new islands, has returned to civilization. Many times it was reported that the Stefansson party had perished but the explorer's most serious trouble developed after he got back. He has just recovered from a serious attack of pneumonia.
