COUNTY LIBRARY REPORT.

On account of recent interest taken in the libraries of Pendleton a brief statement of service rendered by the county library will be of additional interest.

During 1918 the circulation of books in Pendleton was 28,343 and in the county outside of Pendleton 21,771, making a total of 50,114. During 1917 the annual report shows 30,250 books circulated in Pendleton besides 25,277 in the county making a total in 1917 of 55,527.

Many more people besides the above numbers have used the reading rooms for hours at a time but such figures are not recorded as they cannot be accurately noted while the librarian is busy with other duties. Book circulation records, however, are accurately known from the book cards which after being dated and counted are each kept on file as a receipt for the book until its return.

Our last county library report showing Pendleton circulation of 29,250 books means that 20 books were read per family in Pendleton alone during the year.

Although reading attendance is not recorded, however during 1917, a count was kept of Red Cross workers and other attendance at meetings held in the library club, committee and lecture rooms and this totaled 11,295. This is, of course, in addition to the thousands who used the reading rooms and the 20,250 books taken out for home reading in Pendleton.

WAB HISTORY IN SCRAP BOOKS
The county library is having made a series of scrap books containing all newspaper clippings obtainable regarding the army and navy men of Umatilla county.

Miss Ida Boyd is volunteering her time for clipping, dating and arranging the articles and the scrap books when completed will be preserved as one of the most treasured possessions of the library.

The Tribune and East Oregonian are furnishing extra copies of their papers for clipping purposes. The papers of all other towns of the county are also carefully clipped for local soldier and sailor news, all of which will be arranged together in chronological order.

PHOTOGRAPHS IN UNIFORM
Relatives of men in service are asked to furnish as soon as possible photographs in uniform of men in service for the library historical collection. A good number have already been received and are a constant source of interest to visitors at the library.

This man's daughter devotes herself to the difficult task of hunting down the guilty party, and after a marvelous display of craft and cunning and consummate skill is completely victorious in this absorbing game of human wit!

Amid scenes of wild revelry moves a charming young woman like an avenging Nemesis. Even when she appears to have forgotten her solemn vow under stress of passionate love and consuming danger, she is ever on the alert—using every means to attain her relentless object—to solve the tragic mystery.

This central figure, this peerless queen of human hearts and consuming mystery, is Virginia Pearson—brilliant star of a thousand moods. Put this big winner across! See now Virginia Pearson in the "Queen of Hearts"—the super-detective story.

NAVY SAID DEFENSIVE

BRISTOL, Eng., Dec. 11.—Lord George, in a speech here today, expressed the hope that President Wilson will agree to the allies' demand that the ex-kaiser and his accomplices be held responsible for their crimes. "The navy is a reserve weapon, not an offensive," he said. "That is why we do not mean to give it up."

SQUADRON NOT COMING

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The British admiralty today discredited a report that a squadron of the grand fleet will soon visit America.

Americans Visit London

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Arrival of numerous American delegations in London recently, under the guidance of the British ministry of information, has revived among American business men in London plans for exchange of business delegations. The bodies now arrived represent labor, the press, congress, the government, social workers, etc., but not business. It is stated that last spring the American chamber of commerce in London presented a plan to Washington for business delegations which it was urged would tend toward the removal of many misunderstandings and toward friendly cooperation, but the plan was not favored by the American government at that time.

People who wish William Howard Taft to be a sort of super-president in American baseball should bear in mind that he formerly used a Schenectady putter.
