A RAW, SORE THROAT

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole.

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet, colds on the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). Nothing like Musterole for croupy children. Keep it handy for instant use. 30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN VOTER OUGHT TO KNOW

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(By mail.)—Now that women have power to vote, their menfolk, on the strength of hundreds of years' start in the study of politics, are giving them a lot of good advice. Among their valuable hints are the following: Beware of Bolsheviks! They'll borrow anybody's sealskin coat at the point of the pistol.

Never vote for a candidate who parts his hair in the middle. He is obviously unable to take one side or the other.

If your candidate asks you to give him a mandate, ask him: "What about a woman's vote?"

If you attend a political meeting as a heckler, heckle the speaker, the same way as you would your husband. That'll sweeten him at night.

Large scandals often grow from small talk.

OPPOSES TURKISH MASSACRE INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Armenians in America are much excited over the report that the Ottoman government proposes to form a court martial for the trial of those responsible for the Armenian massacres, and through Mirza Sevaaly, chairman of the Armenian National Council of America, have protested to the state department against such a trial.

"The Armenians," said Mr. Sevaaly today, "cannot have any trust in justice being meted out by Turkish judges, who were themselves either actual participants in the Armenian massacres or were in sympathy with them. Any such trial should be presided over by Allied and American representatives."

"Not one of the authors of the massacres of 1915 and 1916 has ever been punished. On the contrary, they have been honored and decorated. It appears quite obvious that this publicity of a purpose to try the culprits is intended to deceive the allies. The Armenians are firmly determined to sever every connection with Turkey. The destruction of Russia and the break up of Turkey have placed the Armenian question in an altogether different light. The Armenians must be indivisible."

Here is One Reason English Soldiers Call Germans Brutes

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The term "brutes" appears often in English newspaper stories of interviewed repatriated prisoners.

This is why: "I was working in a hospital near Soissons," said a young non-commissioned officer waiting on the station platform. "A British prisoner, who was suffering from dysentery was partially unconscious."

"I saw the Germans put him in a coffin. They pushed me away as they began to nail down the lid on the man who was not dead. Later they informed me they had nailed down the lid with iron nails before putting it in the grave. The prisoner was buried alive."

"I saw a British officer, helpless because he was an unarmed prisoner, being bullied by a German private. The private demanded the officer's boots. When the officer refused to give them up the private wounded the officer with a bayonet thrust. Then the private removed the officer's boots and carried them away."

An officer more humane than most German commandants was in charge of a camp where an Irish soldier fell exhausted. German guards prodded him with their bayonets, wounding him badly but he lacked the strength to rise. Fearing they should be punished, the guards put the unconscious man on a track and let a locomotive pass over him. A court martial decided the prisoner came to his death through accident.

One returned prisoner said he came from a camp in which only 47 prisoners were left alive. Originally the camp's population was 1500.

COOS CONSOLIDATION PLAN IS APPROVED

MARSHFIELD, Jan. 4.—L. J. Simpson's plan to consolidate North Bend, Marshfield and surrounding settlements into one big city is being much discussed, and in Marshfield at least seems to meet with approval. To bring about the consolidation some special state legislation will probably be required and there will be many problems to solve, but it is believed that it can be done. In North Bend there is some opposition on the part of residents who think it best to have two cities as there are two separate industrial centers.

Butte Financially Short.

BUTTE, Jan. 4.—City Treasurer N. P. Ward yesterday announced that the general fund which for several months has been used to purchase warrants of city employees, has been exhausted. As a consequence, salary warrants cannot be cashed.

PROMISES MOTHER A GRIZLY BEAR HUG

That life in a convalescent ward of the Red Cross hospital contains much pleasure is indicated by a letter from J. M. Stadfeld, who is known in Pendleton, received here by his brother, Chris Stadfeld, employed at the Baynes store. The letter dated December 27 at New York, says in part: "Landed in New York yesterday and maybe you think I wasn't glad to put both feet on U. S. earth again. We sailed from London December 15 and were on water 11 and a half days but we had everything very nice and comfortable. We came over on the Saxonia, hospital ship. Of course we spent Christmas day at sea, but were treated royally. Had a swell chicken dinner. Can you imagine that for an old soldier? A Christmas tree and Santa Claus also. The officers got up a program of music and all those who could sing had to help out. When all was over Santa Claus was supposed to perform, but he got drunk and they put him to bed, so he came around next morning. They passed around sacks of candy and nuts, a package of cigarettes and a pipe and package of tobacco to each man, tobacco pouch, pair of socks and handkerchief. Some Red Cross, I claim. Will also look up to the Salvation Army, too, for they have done wonderful things for all. Boats met us out away, loaded with thousands of people, bands, and sure played some music. They all feathered around us and sailed in with us, bands playing on both sides and ends. More women and girls than I ever saw before, sure some welcome home. After we were unloaded they brought us down to the hospital on Staten Island, some place. They took our clothes away from us and we took a good bath and then were taken to our wards. They are going to clean and press our clothes, get them back in a couple of days. In the meantime they dress us in a pajama suit, bath robe and pair of slippers. You would die laughing to see us parade around here. There are so many ladies and girls around through here they have lots of fun admiring our shapes. Lodging and eats here are just like home, sure fine, and we sure enjoy them, after fasting for months. I haven't received any mail for about three months, so don't know how anyone is, but I'm going to see Miss Nagel next week, so she will perhaps know. You could never tell that I have been in bed, as I never lost much sleep or weight. Hope everybody is fine and Mamma, just think I'll soon be home and I'll give or show you the grizzly bear hug, as I'm sure anxious to see all. Will write again, so good luck to all. With love, Your son, J. M. STADFELD.

ASTORIA MURDER MYSTERY CLEARED

Private Kevan, Aged 18, Confesses to Aiding in Killing of Jonas Lasella.

ASTORIA, Jan. 4.—Jonas Lasella, who was found dead at the Booth cannery here Friday night, was the victim of a deliberate murder. This came to light Tuesday afternoon when Pervine Kevan, age 18, who was implicated in the killing described the act in a sworn statement, also implicating James Hill, 20 years of age. According to the statement, Hill planned to go to Alderbrook to get Lasella and rob him as he was believed to have considerable money on his person. Waiting for their victim in a dark place near the Booth cannery bankhouse, Hill held him up while Kevan searched him, finding $1 and a pocket knife. After taking what they found in his pockets, Hill hit Lasella over the head with a piece of gaspipe, crushing the man's skull.

They then searched his clothes again, discovering a gold watch and chain. Officer McKnight, who is responsible for the apprehension of the criminals, found a considerable sum in Lasella's residence, proving a man had money which the thieves failed to secure. Hill has been in trouble before, having been arrested about a year ago for threatening the life of Captain J. Lasell. Officers here are of the opinion that the sworn statements of Kevan are sufficient to convict the pair.

GERMAN FEDERATION BASED ON REVOLUTION IS PLAN OF SOCIALISTS

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Secretary of Supplies Wurm has resigned from the Berlin government in sympathy with the independent socialists who left the cabinet several days ago, said a German wireless dispatch today. The governments of Bavaria, Wurttemberg, Baden and Hesse conferred at Stuttgart on Saturday and decided to work in the future for a German federation on the basis of the revolution. There is opposition developing to the plan for disintegration. The south German governments called upon these Prussians to reestablish order. A mouse scares a woman almost as much as a milliner's bill scares a man. If the law of increased demand operates that way, the price of marriage licenses ought to go up when the army gets home.
