He confiscated the kitchenette and thirty gallons of the homemade brandy. Isaac, however, managed to escape.

SQUELCHING FRENCH TONGUE IS FAILURE

BY FRANK J. TAYLOR (United Press Staff Correspondent.) STRASSBURG, Dec. 17.—(By Mail.)—German efforts to stifle the French nationality in Alsace and Lorraine by prohibiting the use of the French language have not succeeded. French came back the day the Germans signed the armistice, to the surprise of many German officials.

During the war it has been strictly prohibited to use a single word of French. Numbers of cases are cited to you in Colmar and Strassburg of men and women serving periods of several days in jail for greeting friends with the French, "bon jour."

But "deputies" edicts failed to stop the language from prospering. Little tots not more than 4 and 5 years old, who could not talk when the anti-French edict went into effect, speak French among themselves, and sing French songs at the top of their voices.

They have been taught in secret, and many families have suffered punishment for their French conversation. Numbers of people speak German more commonly than French, however, though they protest that it is Alsation they are using. Before the war French was allowed in schools for one hour a day only.

Metz is perhaps the most German city of all Alsace-Lorraine. This is explained by the fact that it was border headquarters for Germans, numbers of whom held government positions, which they had monopolized at the expense of the Alsations, German smugglers and merchants formed a large factor in the population.

WOMEN ASK PLACE IN WORLD LEAGUE

PARIS, Feb. 4.—A claim that women may be given a place in whatever bodies may be created for putting into effect the idea of a league of nations is made in a resolution presented to the peace conference by an organization of Frenchwomen under the presidency of Miss Juliette Adam.

Another resolution adopted demands that those responsible for atrocities during the war be punished as criminals so as to prevent the recurrence of barbarities.

"With broken and bleeding hearts," the resolution reads, "we women of France and the allied countries come before the peace congress to ask justice in the name of our martyred sisters."

engine. All remaining doubts will finally be removed by a "demonstration" of the Reo. This is a car which the boys have redeemed from junk. It had been discarded as beyond repair more than a year ago, and during that time had been kept in the "scrap" yard. Today it is a good, serviceable car that can be relied upon over hills and rough roads. The boys have given it a complete overhauling and made a number of new parts to which they had to resort to the forge, the lathe and other machines of the shop.

Seeing these things and the eager manner in which the young mechanics talk hold of their work, with the evident desire to learn it thoroughly, one feels like praising the authors of the South-Hearth act, and congratulating the Pendleton school board for taking advantage of the new law. Pendleton schools have more money invested in vocational training equipment than any other city in the state outside of Portland.

P. H. S. River is the machinery instructor. He is a firm believer in the general utility of the vocational courses. The boys are not taught as a class, but individually, with a view of fitting him for the particular work he wants to do on leaving school. The

HIS ESCAPE TONED. COE KILLED HIMSELF

Dr. F. C. Coe, who committed suicide at Carson City, Nev., last week only did so after an attempt to escape was foiled by Sheriff Levi Christman, of The Dalles. Coe is remembered in Pendleton, having been here in 1914, when he was running a livery stable and practicing as a veterinarian. Following is the story told by Sheriff Christman on his return home from Carson City, where he had gone to bring Coe to The Dalles, where he was wanted on a bad check charge:

"When I reached Carson City I found that Dr. Coe was running a livery stable and practicing as a veterinarian in that city. He had changed his name to Dr. Richards and had apparently won the good-will of the people in that city. Although he was held on the charge of passing worthless checks here, he was out on only $50 bail, which had been put up, curiously enough, by the warden of the state penitentiary.

"Dr. Coe was fighting extradition, but at last the governor of the state told me that he would issue me the extradition warrant at 2 o'clock the following afternoon. I had been protesting all the time that Coe would slip away, since only $50 had been put up as bail. At last, on the day before the warrant was going to be issued me, the authorities agreed to raise Coe's bail to $1,000.

"When a deputy sheriff tried to locate Coe, he found that the doctor had started out across country, representing that he had been called to doctor a horse. He was overtaken several miles from Carson City with all the evidence pointing to an attempt at a getaway. Brought back to the city, the team was driven into the stable and Coe asked permission to step into the stall and hang up the harness. When he came out he was sick. A doctor was called, but Coe died in half an hour. He had taken poison.

"After Coe's death it was discovered that he had sold some of the horses which had been kept in the stable in order to raise funds for his escape, although the horses did not belong to him. Some of them he had sold to two or three different persons."

UNITED STATES STRONG WHEN FIGHTING QUIT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—On the day the armistice was signed the American army on the western front was second only in strength to that of France itself. General March said that on November 11 the United States represented on the western front by 1,950,000 men, France, on November 1, the last date for which official figures were available had 2,570,000. The British and the Portuguese attached to the British army totalled 1,718,000 while the Belgian and Italian forces on the western front aggregated about 200,000.

Up to January 24 the United States had actually discharged 57,268 officers and 555,117 men. The British on January 11 had discharged 12,759 officers and 411,939 men. The total ordered for discharge in this country now is 7,309,900.

NAVY FINDS CLARENCE IS TOO BIG FOR YOUTH OF 17

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4.—Carl Sandell of 1222 East Thirty-third avenue, the great drum major of The Post Boys band, tried to enlist in the navy thirteen years ago when he was only 16. Sandell at that time was a trifle more than seven feet tall and the navy surgeon turned him down.

"The navy hammocks and doors only measure six feet," said the doctor. "You want fit."

Wednesday Carl brought his smallest brother into the navy recruiting station to take the physical examination for the service.

"Tough to be able to take Clarence," said the doctor.
