LOTS OF WORK IN BASE HOSPITALS

BY FRANK J. TAYLOR

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL IN FRANCE, Jan. 15. (By Mail)—Base hospitals, far to the rear of big offensives, played an important part in the fighting.

The way an offensive looked from a big base hospital can be pictured from a letter written by a non-commissioned officer in an American base during the Chateau-Thierry offensive.

The writer starts his letter by telling how emergency surgical teams from the hospital were called for services at the front, detailing one by one "operations" and a feeling that something big was about. He writes: "We left behind, waited. Perhaps it was only a local fight requiring immediate surgical work, we thought. In a few days we should know."

Then came the wounded. The first train was light. Of the time our wards were but partially filled, hence we had no difficulty in receiving the influx with a calmness that was almost leisurely.

"Before we could breathe, however, came another call from that unseen center of activity which sends us our charges. We were ready to receive patients, though the number surprised us a little, but everyone fell to with a will and we were ready. All the wounded were received and accommodated in a manner that brought credit to the hospital and to the army.

Big Job Looms.

"We began to feel a little important and efficient. Then, almost before we had time to think, came a third order: 'Be ready to receive—patients.' That instantly wiped away any thoughts of self-congratulation. It put before us the greatest task yet. Four teams were organized, with a surgeon in charge of each, and no sooner was one case completed than the next began. Such surgery, too! Some of the professional men I heard speak of it as 'beautiful.' For my part, however, I cannot describe it thus. To me it was, rather, marvelous. Never before did I have an understanding of the surgeon's art.

"It truly seemed as if each part of the human anatomy was set out before us as plainly as if charted, while miracles were performed before our very eyes. One after another they came—came so rapidly the surgeons took only time enough between to 'scrub' up. This lives were saved as if by magic; men were virtually made over on the operating table.

"When we looked up at the end of the first day we found we had been working without a break for 19 hours. It was at this moment 2 in the morning by 8 the surgical department was again fully alive. All day long we worked at our posts. Then, at midnight came the order: 'Work straight through till morning' Day and Night All One.

"Thus one day succeeded another, until we scarcely knew when it was day when night. In fact, I cannot now recall the days and distinguish one from the rest. As I look back over them, they all run together—one long continuous day, with no break at all for night. At last, though, we were rewarded. Orders came out of chaos, as order must, and we had the satisfaction of hearing the chief surgeon say: 'Well, boys, we may rest a little now. Every urgent case has been attended.'

"Now we are day by day seeing the effects of our work. I see it perhaps more than some of the others, for I am all the day long in the midst of the patients as they slowly wend their way back toward health. What a revelation they are! What a demonstration of that electrifying spirit of America!

"There is no complaint. The ones who suffer most grumble least. Sometimes it is unbelievable. To them the Germans are no supermen. They have been near enough to see. At the same time there is no bragging, no, instead, we find simply a philosophical acceptance of realities and a determination to win the war at any cost. If ever anyone entertained a lurking apprehension that there might be a remote possibility of disaster for the allied cause, one moment with those young chargers who went through the fire and came back to us would convince him of his folly."

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS

BY ALLMAN

Mothers take especially good care of the boys now they're back.

SAY, HELEN, WHEN DO WE EAT? ISN'T DINNER READY YET?

YES, BUT I'M WAITING ON A ROUGH-DON THAT I INVITED FOR DINNER.

IT'S JUST POURING OUT—I SUPPOSE THE RAIN WILL SCARE HIM OUT.

AW, A LITTLE RAIN WON'T KEEP A SOLDIER AWAY—JUST THINK WHAT THEY HAD TO CONTEND WITH OVER IN THE TRENCHES.

WE OUGHT TO START TO EAT AND THEN HE'LL COME—HELL BE HERE—A LITTLE RAIN WOULD NEVER KEEP ONE OF THOSE LADS AWAY—THIS WEATHER IS DUCK SOUP FOR THEM.

THERE'S THE PHONE! MAYBE HE'S HAD AN ACCIDENT!

WILL YOU PLEASE TELL MRS. DUFF THAT I'M SORRY TO DISAPPOINT HER BUT MY MOTHER THINKS IT'S RAINING TOO HARD FOR ME TO GO OUT.
