MOTION PICTURE NEWS

What the Picture Theaters Have to Tell You.

ARCADE THEATRE

"Mickey is irresistible. She made a big hit at the Arcade last night. Mickey nervously twisted a suspender of the overalls that partly clad her little figure. She lifted her eyes to Minnie Ha Ha—those wonderfully expressive dark eyes, which could mirror pain, sorrow, love, laughter, every emotion of humankind.

"I don't want to be sent away, Minnie," she said, dully, her pretty head drooping.

The Indian woman stolidly puffed at her corn-cob pipe, her broad, ugly face immobile. Only her twinkling eyes betrayed her feelings.

"Um! Um! go!" she muttered, mechanically.

"But I don't want to leave my mountains! I'm afraid, Minnie. Oh, you rascal!"

The last remark was not directed at Minnie Ha Ha, but to a saucy squirrel who had suddenly crawled from one of her overalls legs. He winked impudently at the girl for a second, and then scampered away. With a little cry, Mickey leaped to her feet and dashed in pursuit of the bushy-tailed rascal, her hair streaming behind her.

A wild, untrammelled girl—Nature's own—and now they were going to send her to the confining, prisoned city.

"Heap bad!" muttered Minnie Ha Ha, shaking out her pipe.

But little Mickey was taken away just the same—to the home of a hypocritical aunt who thought she was an heiress, and who sent her to work as a "slavey" when she got informed to the contrary.

They couldn't down this little girl, however. She emerged triumphant from every misfortune—the same mischievous, lovable, wonderful Mickey—unforgettable Mickey.

Herbert Thornhill saw her and loved her. This wild, sweet, shy child, so complex despite her simplicity, attracted him as no other girl ever had, and he set out to woo her and help her escape her enemies—and even Mickey had these.

It is the film sensation of the hour, the pictured story of "Mickey" which opened at the Arcade theatre last night to crowded houses, and will continue today and tomorrow.

ALTA TODAY.

Dorothy Gish is a Victim of Stage Fright.

Dorothy Gish, whose recent tour of the country in behalf of the Thrift Stamp campaign brought many thousands of dollars to the pledge funds in every city she visited, is a victim of stage fright, so she says. Although she was on the stage from the time she was four years old until she was nearly fourteen, she declares that it is the most difficult thing in the world for her to address an audience.

Her appearance in New York, Chicago and Boston during the past few months brought thousands to the theaters at which she appeared and in each instance she had to fight her nerves to make her appearance. Miss Dorothy is five feet tall, and is just five feet of mischief and individuality. They did not always call her "The Little Disturber" around the studio. It used to be a little something else, especially when a director or cameraman was looking for his hat or having other trouble which would eventually be traced to the fact that Miss Gish was in the studio.

David Mark Griffith, under whose direction she created the most famous girl character in pictures, says Miss Dorothy is the most irrepressible personality he ever met. When it was announced that she was to appear in her own productions, he expressed himself as believing her to be on the highest of the high roads to success.

"Battling Jane," Miss Gish's first Paramount picture, will be shown at Alta theatre beginning today. It is in every way a charming production.

OFF COMES CORN IN ONE PIECE

There's only one corn remedy in the world that peels corns and calluses off like a banana peel, and that's "Get-It". For walkers and standers, for shoppers.

"Get-It" leaves Toe As Smooth As the Palm of Your Hand.

Put 2 drops of "Get-It" on, and smile!

and dancers, there's immediately relief from corn pains, and a quick finish for any corn or callus. "Get-It" is applied in two or three seconds. There's no work, no fuzzy plasters, no wrapping of toes. "Get-It" dries in a second or two. That's all. As easy to use as signing your name. The corn loosens from the true flesh and you peel it right off with your fingers while you wonder at the sight and smile. That's why "Get-It" is the biggest selling corn-remedy in the world today. Be corn-free at last.

"Get-It" is the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way costs but a trifle at any drug store. Mfg'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Pendleton and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Tallman & Co.

Well, you know the story of the book, which has spread gladness around the world like the sun. The play puts before you Pollyanna and her friends in flesh and blood, adding the human touch of voice and manner, and thereby kindling the greater interest of real life. After you meet her the world won't look so bad, and you will be glad. You will leave the theater with a happier heart than you have known in a sheaf of days, and you will want others to share your gladness and feel the magical influence of this wonderful girl. None of us is so well off that the glad spirit and guidance of the living Pollyanna cannot lead him into greater happiness, and produce kinder thoughts and feelings than he knew before he met her. Come to the Oregon theatre tonight and welcome the glad girl who has brought so much happiness into the world. It will be a great event, and give you a sinking fund of joyful thoughts that will never exhaust.

"Pollyanna," the play of brightness and gladness, that brings a message of optimism to every auditor, is being sent here by Klaw and Erlanger and George C. Tyler with a company of competent players.

Viola Harper leads the cast, and those prominent in her support are George Alston, Herbert Fortier, Blanche Douglas, Winifred Hanley, Master Billy Blaisdell, Frederick Carlton, Jack Morton and others.

heroes are springing up all over England.

The pensions ministry pioneered in this work when it established a school at Charterhouse military hospital.

The government also is encouraging private experimentation to develop new types of arms of still greater usefulness.

"More types are being developed daily," says Sir Charles Henderline, director of the artificial limb department of the pensions ministry.

"Our biggest difficulty is persuading men to persevere in learning how to use artificial legs and arms. They are at first uncomfortable and cumbersome. This soon discourages the ordinary man, who begins to feel he had better get along without the appliance."

A month's training however, usually convinces the experimenting soldier the appliance enables him to do many things he couldn't without it. Sir Charles says.

Very many men find the man-made legs and arms enable them to perform their prewar tasks which at first seemed impossible without the natural number of sound members.

FRENCH PRESS DUBIOUS.

PARIS, April 18.—The Temps, discussing Lloyd George's speech before parliament, professed to see in it assurance that Britain and the United States would aid France if she should be again attacked by Germany. Other Paris newspapers, however, took opposite views, contending that his words were empty as far as French guarantees are concerned.
