"Patronage of Home Products Will Eliminate the 'If'"

If it is right and proper to encourage manufacturing in this city nothing should be permitted to retard the growth of the firms now operating here. On the other hand every assistance should be given such firms in their endeavor to increase their output, every encouragement offered them in their efforts to broaden their markets.

The head of one of our largest manufacturing concerns remarked a few days ago—"If I had the entire trade of this city in my lines, I could double the size of my plant and employ twice as many people."

Think what this would mean. Keep well in mind the fact that our manufacturing firms deserve our loyal patronage. It is primarily a matter of self-protection, of "safety first" if you please, for us to favor home products, for on the prosperity of our factories depend to a great extent our individual prosperity.

Our factories share with us in paying our taxes, paving our streets and supporting our schools, churches and charitable institutions. They spend their profits here. They employ labor—these workmen in turn spending their earnings here.

If the dollars that are sent away for goods that are inferior to the home products brand could be kept here it would mean a far greater degree of prosperity for the concerns now operating, new factories would spring up, work would be given to thousands of people and our city as a whole would enjoy an unprecedented era of good times. Let your home earned dollars be home spent dollars.

BRAN NEW

It's Made in Pendleton and it Has the Pendleton Pep.

No cereal beverage on the market is manufactured with greater care or cleanliness. Only the highest grade cereals are used and they are subjected to a series of cleaning processes. The water used is sterilized by boiling and Bran-New is made in sterilized copper tanks. It is filtered seven times before put in containers which are sterilized before use. No beverage made is richer in food substance and none more satisfying to lovers of malt drinks.

Our true-fruit beverages—15 flavors—are manufactured with the same consideration for cleanliness.
