

Velvet

THE FRIENDLY TOBACCO

Thar's two things can't be imitated—youthful charm and mellow old age.

Velvet Joe

"Mellow old age" in good Kentucky Burley Tobacco is reached after it has cured for two years.

We put millions of pounds in warehouses every year, to ripen for two years. It is a slow, expensive method. But it makes Velvet as good a pipe tobacco as money can buy.

It makes Velvet mellow and friendly—cool and long-burning. Get that charm of Velvet's mellow age in your pipe today.

EXCHANGE OF CHILDREN ASKED BY FRENCHMEN

Paris Professor Would Further Understanding With U. S.

BY PROFESSOR A. FRIBOURG.

(Written for the United Press.)
 (Note. Professor Andre Fribourg is professor of history in the Chapal College of the University of Paris. He served as a soldier during the war and was wounded at Verdun. He has been touring the United States for the past five months, lecturing and gathering information for the French Press and Government on American-French relations. Professor Fribourg is the author of a dozen books, mainly on modern history and topics relating to foreign affairs.)

The American and the French people more nearly resemble each other than do any other two nations in the world. Therefore, when I return to Paris, I shall report to my government that every encouragement should be given to close understanding between ourselves and ourselves.

You Americans, as far as temperament is concerned, are the direct descendants of the English of Shakespeare's day. You are not like the present inhabitants of the British Isles. You resemble more the Elizabethan English, who were more like the French than the English of today. That is why you have so many traits in common with the modern French. When Shakespeare wrote his plays, the French and English were similar. From that time on the English character in the British Isles did not develop along the same lines as the French. Only the English who came to America continued the tradition.

Children of 15 or 16 Americans and French are alike in temperament and persistent optimism. They have the same exuberant mentality. They react in similar manners to similar experiences. They are quick in thought and their vitality is never at rest. They are the modern Elizabethans. This fact, which I have discovered in America, has caused me to determine to recommend to the French government that an exchange of children be arranged between our two countries. American children between the ages of 15 and 16 should be sent to France to live in folk homes in contact with French families. French children of the same impressionable age should come to the United States and be temporarily adopted here. By this means, the next generation in France and America would know one another as intimately as they know themselves.

I shall also urge upon the French government the desirability of exchanging professors and students with American universities. I favor the universities of each country adopting one another as sister institutions, so that they shall have a greater sense of comradeship than usually follows the more formal exchanges of lecturers.

Actual Impression
 These are some of the ways by which our impressions of each other can be moulded by actual facts. Instead of absurd rumors and false reports. The only reason Frenchmen and Americans have not been seen to resemble each other hitherto is because our views of each other have been too distant. We have trusted to casual visits, instead of really studying our fundamental characteristics.

Once it is understood how similarly we view life and how parallel are our ideals, I believe we ought to be in a position to form a military entente. I am convinced the economic pressure which the League of Nations has created as its principal weapon will never be able to prevent wars. Germany not only resists the pressure, but fought the world almost to a victorious end. The League of Nations must have military weapons until the spirit of idealism has permeated the peoples of the earth. The best weapon of this kind would be a Franco-American entente, making known to the world that the armies and navies of both countries have been united as formal allies for the preservation of peace. The Franco-American union is the world's peace.

CREDIT MEN MEET IN DETROIT CONVENTION

DETROIT, June 10.—Two thousand members of the National Association of Credit Men were here today for the 24th annual convention of their organization. Discussion of credit problems was to begin, following an opening address to be delivered by Mayor James Coussins, of Detroit.

Many forms of entertainment have been provided for the credit men during their three day stay here. The program of the convention calls for a discussion of the various problems confronting the members, in view of the vast amount of reconstruction work necessary as a result of the war. Prominent speakers at the session will include Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, Paul M. Warburg, former member of the Federal Reserve Board, Edward James Cattell, of Philadelphia; Julius Henry Cohen, H. Booth, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York.

Address relating to policy and the conduct of the credit business are scheduled to be delivered by the following members: P. B. Bethel, Louisville, Ky.; George W. Gardiner, of Providence, R. I.; L. Hallgren, Seattle, Wash.; J. H. Weaver, Tacoma, Wash.; Fred Brown Sawyer, Philadelphia; Vernon Hal, Dallas; M. S. Green, Chicago; C. E. Mixer, Worcester, Mass.; T. W. Sparranberger, Evansville, Ind.

A. J. May, Washington; D. L. Sawyer, Milwaukee; T. J. Gortette, New Orleans; T. J. Cox, Pittsburgh; J. Walter Curran, Baltimore; and H. L. Rosen, Milwaukee.

SPEECH IS SET TO MUSIC

Address by Head of French Chamber Music, His Majesty's Lyrical Work.
 PARIS, France, June 10.—A celebrated musician once declared that anything could be set to music, even a newspaper article. Some confirmation has just been given to his claim in Paris by the first performance of "Apothose," a lyrical work given by 200 singers (soloists and chorus). The music was written by Francis Casadesu and the words by Paul Deschanel, the president of the chamber of deputies. M. Deschanel's libretto is in fact, one of his clearest speeches, which Casadesu found so brief that he was inspired by it to set it to music. The work had a most successful production.

Stringy
 Customer (in music seller's): I want a copy of the "Stolen Rope."
 Assistant: I am afraid I don't know of such a song.
 Customer: Why, it goes tum-tum-tum-tum-tum.
 Assistant: Oh, you can't the "Lost Chord."
 Customer: Ah, that's it!
