THE FROGS OF FRANCE

We call you Frogs, my hearties,
 With your regimental blue—
 And praps 'twas through lovin'
 That we wished the name on you.

But now that you have got it
 And it's likely it will cling,
 It seems that maybe, somehow,
 There's a meanin' to the thing.

Through four long fearful winters
 In your chilly Flanders bogs,
 You've squatted—eating, sleeping.

In your mud-holes—just like Frogs.

Like Frogs—whose spots have mingled
 With each grass and stone and stick—
 You camouflaged your hiding—
 You were the first to pull the trick.

Like Frogs you set and squint-
 ed
 'Cross at Fritzie—day by day,
 But you were tout suite beaucoup.

When you leaped into the
 fray,
 You left a heap o' Frogs' legs
 In those marshes where you soaked—
 Where tens and tens of thousands
 Of your punctured poins
 croaked.

Yes, we've dubbed you Frogs,
 my hearties,
 With the spattered rags of
 blue,
 With your scars and stumps and
 crutches
 Which you'll carry till you're through—
 But well you've proved your fitness
 For the rank you get by chance.
 And so once more here's to you,
 Oh, you dauntless Frogs of France!

—ANTHONY EUWER.

LODGE'S TRIBUTE—NOT TO W. W.

HERE is a bit of biography that is of peculiar interest in these days of the attempted dominancy of Messrs. Lodge, Knox, et al.: "When the war drew to a close, it was he who began alone the task of making peace. He had nearly completed the work when his colleagues appeared in Paris, and by incautious words broke the web so carefully spun. Finally, boldly disregarding the instructions of Congress, he emerged from all complications with a triumphant peace."

Is this a tribute to Woodrow Wilson? Looks like it, doesn't it? Well, it isn't! It is a portion of a eulogy delivered by Senator Lodge to the memory of Benjamin Franklin for the part that the noble old patriot played in winding up the Revolutionary War. There are those who are so keenly appreciative of humor as to consider this a pretty good, though altogether unconscious, joke played by Senator Lodge upon himself and his fault-finding colleagues.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Prompt work on the Kamela-Pendleton road will be welcome. Let us hope this will be the last season during which we will hear reports that the road from La Grande to Pendleton is impassable.

The revolution lasted longer at Winnipeg than at Seattle but it is meeting the same end.

Pendleton voters will have an opportunity Monday to show their approval of the improved school system.

FIGHTING MANKIND'S PROGRESS.

THE sum and substance of senate behavior is that the majority leaders are trying to kill the League of Nations. They are not aroused because the treaty has not been officially submitted to the senate. They know the treaty is not yet ready for submission to any of the allied governments.

Neither do the obstructionists object to the wording of the league covenant. They object to the whole thing and are indulging in hell raising tactics to kill it off.

For some reason the senate junkers do not want the world to secure a machine whereby wars may be prevented. They want the old order to prevail. They want to break faith with our soldiers who were told that they fought a war to end wars and to set up a rule of justice and reason. The senate objectors want to keep Mars upon his throne. They would delay mankind's progress and continue a condition under which each nation must sink or swim as best it can under the laws of the jungle.

The hell raisers are committing a crime against civilization. Will the country stand for it?

WHERE IS THE SHELLBURN SLIPPER?

DOWN at Shellburn, in Linn county the people appealed to the county judge to take a little nine year old girl out of the community. The petitioners alleged that the child is incorrigible and must have "been born with wickedness in her."

The little child in question lives with her grandmother, her parents having been divorced. Has she had a fair deal in the way of training and sympathy? Was wickedness born in her or did she acquire it in Shellburn? If the good people who are complaining against this unfortunate child had devoted an equal amount of energy to helping her and directing her would there be any need of appealing to the court? There are two sides to most questions and in this case it may be that Shellburn is at fault also.

If those people will read the

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

What good will it do you to work like a horse?
 There isn't a blessed thing in it; The fellow you work for expects it, of course,
 But don't let him kid you one minute.

Don't be like the come-ons you see round a shop
 Who plug till they're winded and wheezy,
 You'll find that the fellow that gets to the top
 Is the lad who takes everything easy.

This wisdom I gleaned from the earnest remarks
 Of a midnight sojourner in one of the parks!

The average boss on a job doesn't know,
 One half of the things you've forgotten.
 Come back at him snappy and say,
 "Is that so?"
 If he says that your work's getting rotten,
 Inform him your motto is always to keep.

All foremen and such in their places,
 And some day you'll rise to the top of the heap,
 And spend half your time in the races.

This method of gaining success must be right,
 I heard it proclaimed in the broad line last night!

Whenever you feel you have earned a day's pay
 Drop the job as a kid drops a thistle;
 You always can think of some nice, stalling way
 To loaf till the toot of the whistle.

The men who own houses in Millionaire's Row,
 With horses and autos and flowers,
 And that sort of stuff, never got all that dough
 By sticking at work after hours.

By sticking at work after hours,
 This means of advancement I'm sure cannot fail;
 It was passed out to me through the bars of a jail!
