BIRTHS EXCEED DEATHS BY LARGE PROPORTION

Infants Born in U. S. Number 1,353,792 in 1919; Deaths 776,222.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 13.—In the birth-registration area of the United States 1,353,792 infants were born alive in 1919, representing a birth rate of 24.6 per 1,000 of population. The total number of deaths in the same area was 776,222, or 14.1 per 1,000. The birth exceeded the deaths by 74.4 per cent. For every state in the registration area, for practically all the cities, and for nearly all the counties, the births exceeded the deaths, in most cases by considerable proportions. The mortality rate for infants under 1 year of age averaged 92.8 per 1,000 living births. The foregoing among the facts brought out by the Census Bureau's annual compilation of birth statistics.

The birth-registration area, established in 1915, has grown rapidly. It comprised, in 1917, the six New England states, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and the District of Columbia, and had an estimated population of 55,000,000. The total population of the United States in that year.

Comparison With 1916.

The birth rate for the entire birth-registration area fell below that for 1916 by two-tenths of one per 1,000 population; but the death rate was less by one-tenth of one per cent in 1916. Thus the excess of the birth rate over the death rate for 1917, which amounted to 10.5 per 1,000, was somewhat greater than the corresponding excess for 1916, 10.1 per 1,000 although it fell slightly below that for 1915, 10.9 per 1,000. If this birth and death rates prevailing in any one of these three years were to remain unchanged, and if no migration were to take place to or from the area to which they relate, its population would increase at the rate of slightly more than 1 per cent per annum, or a little more than 10 per cent in a decade. This would be about half the rate—21 per cent—by which the entire population of the United States increased between 1900 and 1910.

White and Colored.

Of the total number of births reported, 1,230,238, or 91 per cent, were of white infants and 123,554, or 9.1 per cent, were of colored infants. The death rates for the two elements of the population were 13.7 and 22.5 per 1,000 respectively.

Infant Mortality.

The infant mortality rate—that is, the number of deaths in infancy under 1 year of age per 1,000 born alive—throughout the birth-registration area as a whole was 92.8 in 1917, as against 101 in 1916 and 109 in 1915. This is equivalent to saying that in 1915 and 1916, of every 10 infants born alive 1 died before reaching their first birthday, whereas in 1917 the corresponding ratio was a trifle more than 1 in 11. Among the 29 states these rates ranged from 57.4 for Minnesota to 119.9 for Maryland; and for the white population separately the lowest and the highest rates were 45.5 for Washington and 109.5 for New Hampshire.

The infant mortality rates vary greatly for the two sexes and for the various nationalities. The rate for male infants in 1917, 93.7 per 1,000 living births, was nearly 25 per cent greater than that for female infants, which was only 82.3. When the comparison is made on the basis of race or nationality of mothers a minimum of 66.2 per 1,000 births is shown for infants with others born in Denmark, Norway, Sweden and a minimum of 12.4 for infants with mothers born in Poland, while for Negro children the rate was 148.6.

Plural Births.

The reports from the registration area show the birth of 14,324 pairs of twins and 155 sets of triplets in 1917—in all, 29,253 infants, or a little more than 2 per cent of the total number born.

Number of Children per Family.

The reports for 1,241,722 of the births occurring in 1917 contained information as to number of child in order of birth. Of these reports, 328, 942 were for the first child born to the mother, 264,044 for the second child, 194,528 for the third, 124,321 for the fourth, and 95,931 for the fifth. In the remaining 216,846 cases, or 17.5 per cent of the entire number for which information upon this point was obtained, the total number of children borne by the mother was 6 or more; in 37,914 cases it was 10 or more; in 1,680 cases, 15 or more; in 56 cases, 20 or more; and in one case, that of a colored woman, the birth of a twenty-fifth child was reported.

The total number of children borne by the mothers who gave birth in these 1,241,722 infants in 1917, in whose cases data were available as to previous births, was 4,922,908. The reports for 1,194,621 of the births occurring in 1917 contained information as to the entire number of children borne by the mothers and born to living, and gave a total of 2,442,466, or an average of very nearly 2 living children in each family in which a birth took place in 1917.

States and Cities.

The following table shows, for the birth-registration area, the states and by cities having more than 100,000 population in 1910, the number of births in 1917, the percentage of excess of birth over deaths, and the infant mortality rate. The figures for the white and colored elements of the population are shown separately for those areas in which colored persons constituted more than one-tenth of the total population.

Pershing's Ancestor Came From Alsace

Gen. Pershing's great-great-grandfather lived in Alsace. His name was Friedrich Pfirsching. His grandsons name was Daniel Pfirsching. When Daniel came to America he had his surname changed to Pershing. Daniel Pershing fought in the revolutionary war, and John F. Pershing his grandson, fought in the civil war. John Joseph Pershing was born in Laclede, Mo., Sept. 13, 1860. John F. Pershing, the general's father, was a storekeeper when John was a boy. He was a studious lad. He won a book called "The Life of Washington" by solving a hard problem given to his class. He taught school for a while and then went to West Point. John Pershing served as an officer in the Philippines and helped to subdue the natives. He also served in the Spanish-American war. While on the Mexican border his wife and two of his children were burned to death in the Presidio, San Francisco. Only Warren, his youngest son, survived. John J. Pershing was appointed commander of the American expeditionary forces. Arriving in England, he was given a royal welcome, and when a few weeks later he reached France the French outdid the English in the welcome they gave him. Later that he turned the American army over to the command of Gen. Foch, as it was necessary to have only one controlling officer.

JAYBIRD IN CHURCH GETS TOO NOISY AND PASTOR SHOOT'S IT

SANDERSVILLE, Va., June 13.—W. A. Wray, pastor of the Baptist church here, created a mild stir at his morning services Sunday when he stopped in the midst of his sermon, got a shotgun and killed a jaybird that had just been flying around the auditorium and singing while the services were in progress.

Mr. Wray announced just before the congregation sang a hymn that he would kill the bird if it sang again. The jay began again. The preacher stopped the services, went to his home, got his gun, returned to the church and fired one shot. Services were resumed.

Walked Life's Path Side By Side; Buried Together

DENVER, June 13.—Death could not separate Catherine Kuhn and John P. Kuhn. After six years of married life when Catherine Kuhn passed away a week ago from pneumonia, John Kuhn could not go on living. Monday afternoon the couple were laid to rest, side by side, in the Washelli cemetery.

Mrs. Kuhn, a little more than 50 years old, died last Thursday. Funeral arrangements were delayed until relatives in other parts of the country could be heard from, and before plans for interment were made, her husband, 55, had joined her.

He was apparently in perfect health, and died from loneliness, in the belief of friends and neighbors. It has been their expressed wish that they die and be buried together. Born in Germany, their romance began when they were youngsters. They came to Seattle many years ago, and lived in Fremont. Kuhn was a carpenter.
