GERMANY STILL HAS DREAMS OF CONQUEST

Common People Want no More War, Other Would "Come Back."

BERLIN, June 21.—Germany hasn't altogether lost her dream of military conquest. Or, perhaps, it is more accurate to say that some persons within Germany still cherish hopes for the regeneration of militarism. A few ambitious men are anxious to have Germany build up her youth through physical training in the schools, so that some day when the present war is well in the background and peace is years old, Germany can build a new military machine. To say this is a general hope would be far from the truth. The common people don't want any more war.

Some of them frankly say they had enough of it the first day they were in it. And there are plenty who now say that the Kaiser misled them, and that the military crowd betrayed them. Certain it is that the liberals feel that there was much blindness about the causes of the war, and the reason for continuing it. Germany was fed on patriotic propaganda for a long time and with success came a lust for more victories and more territory. But, reverse and the final glimmerings of the truth as to the Kaiser and militarism converted many Germans from the policies of iron and blood. True, there was from the time of the armistice to the time of presentation of the peace terms many of the "old guard" in power. And some of these felt that there was a chance for Germany "to come back." To them the allied peace terms proved the greatest shock, though everywhere there was surprise that the victors' terms proved as strong as they did. The liberals complained that Germany clung too much to the things of the past—that too many men with Kaiser affiliations stayed on after the republic was formed. And, strange to say the flag of the empire up to this writing has been more in evidence than the flag of the republic. In fact, in the demonstrations of May 13, an American here for several months, declared that he had seen the republican colors for the first time. An example of how Germany has persisted in the things of the past is illustrated in its publicity. Here, there is still "propaganda"—and considerable figuring as to whether this or that piece of news will be favorable to Germany when it goes abroad. The first day that this writer talked with a German official he was asked as to whether certain bits of information would be kindly received in America. And so it goes. Many believe, however, that, after all, a new deal is about to come in Germany which shall make her more truly liberal than she has been in recent years. As for militarism, nobody seriously believes that it can rear its head for years to come—if ever.

Bing Cherries Sell for $200 a Ton at Stanfield

STANFIELD, June 21.—Mayor James M. Kyle has purchased the crop of Bing cherries from M. C. Barragar, at $200 per ton. He will have six or seven tons. This is the largest buy made by a local buyer.

Mr. Reese of Stage Gulch has bought the George Reising place. He also purchased 100 acres from the Umatilla ranch.

Floyd Thomas arrived home Wednesday morning from Washington, D. C. He has been doing guard work in the national capital for several months.

Mr. Handy of Milton, has bought two lots on Farriman street from Mrs. Emma Prognitz. Mr. Handy will build a bungalow and move his family here at once.

Mrs. Estelle Plaher was a Pendleton visitor Thursday.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday afternoon in the church parlors with Mrs. Prognitz and Mrs. C. D. Connor as hostesses. A large number was present. They adjourned for the summer vacation to meet again the first Thursday in September.

Mrs. L. B. Wertz of Woodland, Washington, is the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Stuart.

Mrs. Carl Helm and two sons, Carl, Jr., and Robert, left Wednesday for a visit to Mr. Helm's mother in Walla Walla.

Lee Bartholomew, who has been attending the state university at Eugene, came home Sunday and will spend his vacation with his father here.

At the annual school election, Monday J. B. McCoy was elected to succeed himself and Frank Sloan succeeded J. D. Wallace.

F. E. Schmidt, Pendleton attorney, was in town Wednesday on legal business.

Mrs. W. E. Bray is visiting her daughter at Grants Pass. She expects to be gone ten days or two weeks. C. L. Smith, agriculturist for the O. W. R. & N., was here for a couple of days this week. C. H. Naylor returned Wednesday from a week's vacation with his family in Portland.

WINNEPEG LEADER WANTS SETTLEMENT

WINNEPEG, June 21.—James Winning, president of the executive committee of the general strike here, said that metal trades workers will approach iron masters shortly with a view to opening negotiations for strike settlement on the basis of recognition of the trades unions through elected representatives, recognition of the metal trades council and reinstatement of the strikers. The collective bargaining principle will also be discussed.

DAUGHTER BORN TO MAE MARSH OF PICTURE FAME

NEW YORK, June 20.—A daughter was born Friday night to Mae Marsh, screen star who is the wife of Louis Lee Arns, sporting writer and magazine author. Miss Marsh, who said she would never marry until she was 30, was exactly 29 years old when she and Mr. Arns decided differently in the Little Church Around the Corner, last September.

"DEAD SPOTS" IN BROADWAY TO GO

NEW YORK, June 20.—"Dead spots" are to be eliminated from Broadway and the famous thoroughfare is to be better lighted, kept clean and beautiful, improved architecturally and made cool looking by setting out numerous trees, according to the latest program of the Broadway Association, as presented at a luncheon yesterday at Churchill's. The association, which has been holding a membership drive is now the largest civic street improvement organization in the world, the managing director, Major Henry G. Opatyke, asserted. Its membership represents every portion of Broadway from one end to the other.

"Among the matters which will receive our immediate attention are better lighting for which we have appointed a special committee; the improvement of transportation and traffic conditions; the study of the best means of eliminating the 'dead spots' in developing Broadway's architectural possibilities, keeping the street clean, grass plots and planting trees," said Major Opatyke, and beautifying its small parks and
