WASHINGTON, June 19.—Unofficial "Victory" ribbons, to be worn by all men who have seen service, are being sold by manufacturers in the United States and are not correct reproductions of the double rainbow service ribbons evolved in France.

The ribbon being sold has from five to six distinct colors, with well marked edges. The official ribbon is to be supplied to all men who were in in army during the war, and consists of all the prismatic colors from violet to red. These colors flow together without distinct lines of separation. The official ribbon is of watered silk and has white thread edges.

A bill now in congress would make it unlawful to wear any decoration except when authorized. Manufacturers who sell duplicates of official decorations and persons who wear them, if the bill is passed, will be liable to fine and imprisonment.
