WORK IS FOUND FOR BLIND OF GREAT WAR

Employment in Shipyards and Rigging Lofts Offered.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—That both the blind as well as the maimed of the great war are fully capable of doing certain necessary work in ship-rigging lofts and hangars in the opinion of E. J. Luebbert, head of a tent manufacturing concern, who made the discovery while endeavoring to find sufficient help in order to fill his war contracts with the United States government.

Short of help for preparing foot stops and guy ropes for his tents, which consists in knotting and splicing, it occurred to Mr. Luebbert that if the blind were capable of becoming adept in basket weaving, the same principles would apply to making complicated knots and splices. His offer of work to the students of several institutions for the blind was accepted and the result proved a complete success.

For the foot rope, or loop that holds to the tent pole, the Matthew Walker knot is used, among the most complicated known to marines. By patient work and with the aid of heavy rope over which Mr. Luebbert could guide the hands of the pupils the workers were able, at the end of the week, to make the knot as well as their teacher. "Not only could they do as well as myself, but they could do it a whole lot faster. I paid them three-fourths of a cent each for every foot stop delivered and they averaged between $4 and $5 a day. Out of several millions of these foot stops delivered there was not a single rejection. I also taught them how guy ropes were spliced and whipped and they became equally expert in this.

"Under the circumstances I am convinced that these people could be expertly used by the United States shipping board in making the rigging for the new merchant marine fleet which we are constructing. There is much work in rigging lofts that they can do as expertly as a second worker.

"With the tremendous growth in aviation, which I believe is bound to come, they also could be employed in the hangars where wire cable has to be wrapped by rope."

Ironing Linen.

The appearance of linen will be improved if it is ironed the same day it is washed and without hanging it out to dry. Rinse it thoroughly, wring dry and roll the linen articles in a dry sheet. Let them lie for a time and iron dry with a hot iron. This saves the wear and tear of fine linen of whipping on a clothesline, and gives an additional stiffness and luster, especially to cheap linen and well worn articles.
