LOUGH ARRIVES TO MEET STEVENS

Looking every inch the fighter that the Portland press accounts indicate he is, Frankie Lough, who is scheduled to face Eddy Stevens in a ten-round go tomorrow evening at the Oregon theater, hopped off the rattlers this morning.

Lough is in the pink of condition, being fresh from a series of boxing triumphs in the Rose City where Jockey Bennett, former Pendleton scrapper, had charge of his conditioning. He is working out this afternoon in the Moose Hall and good many of the fans are giving him the double-O.

Lough's last battle in Portland was with George Schroeder, the St. Paul lightweight whose style of battling is likened to that of Mike Gibbons. Lough won a decision after four rounds of what the Telegram reported as "rip-tearing, torrid rounds." His home is in Los Angeles but for the past nine months he has been boxing in Portland.

Stevens is in fine fettle and feels confident of a decision over Lough, basing his confidence on the fact that he has beaten some of the same boys that Lough has met.

Two whirlwind preliminaries are promised the fans. Perry, the battling brakeman, and Sailor Owens will mix for four rounds at 170 pounds and C. A. Quinlivan, the ex-box champ, and Kid Morris, the shipbuilder, will step six rounds at 160. Harold Casey will officiate in the preliminaries but selection of a referee for the main bout will be postponed until the arrival of Abe Martin, Lough's manager. The doors will be open at 7:30 and the preliminaries will start promptly at 8:20. A special invitation to ladies is issued and they are promised that there will be nothing to offend and much to entertain.
