MOTION PICTURE NEWS

What the Picture Theaters Have to Tell You.

PASTIME SUNDAY-MONDAY.

Famous Screen Players Appear in "The Girl of the Golden West."

In the cast of "The Girl of the Golden West," the splendid Paramount photoplay starring Mabel Van Buren, which will be presented at the Pastime theater Sunday, are many artists who have achieved signal renown since the production of that picture. Among these are Raymond Hatton, who appeared to great advantage in the support of Geraldine Farrar in many of her famous pictures, Theodore Roberts, one of the best all-round actors identified with motion pictures, House Peters, a leading man of prominence, Anita King, a charming actress, Billy Elmer, Sidney Deane and others.

It is seldom that a photoplay presents so notable a list of screen players. Miss Van Buren has a charming role, that of a man who keeps a saloon in a mining camp in California, during the days of the gold rush in '49, who becomes interested in the welfare of a hunted bandit, and who saves his life in a highly dramatic manner. The play is filled with situations of unusual dramatic intensity.

ARCADE SUNDAY-MONDAY.

Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" Now Classic of screen.

Universally recognized as one of the most appealing stories ever written, rich in sentiment, humor, and a "win" charm, "Little Women," the famous novel of Louisa M. Alcott, has been fitted in photoplay form as a Paramount-Artcraft special picture, and this will be shown at Arcade theater next Sunday. Its presentation at that playhouse will constitute for the first time for admirers of this immortal story, the most celebrated characters in American literature—Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy.

"Little Women" was filmed in and about the Alcott home in Concord, Mass., where the story was written by Miss Alcott in 1848.

The Alcott home has been well preserved and stands today exactly as it did when the story was penned. The producers had the active assistance and cooperation of the surviving members of the cast, and the players selected had the unqualified approval of several residents of Concord who knew Miss Alcott and the little women of whom she wrote.

The four "Little Women," Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy, are portrayed respectively by Isabel Lamont, Dorothy Bernard, Lillian Hall and Florence Finn. Henry is John Brooke and General Nagle plays Laurie. Kate Lester is Marmee. The scenario was written by Anne Maxwell and the director was Harley Knoles. From the standpoint of photography, the picture is unexcelled.

Here Comes the Bride

By all means see this comedy.

In "As the Sun Went Down," a stirring drama of a rough mining camp, Edith Storey, famous Metro star, will be seen in the strong part of "Colonel Billy," a "two-gun" woman. This picture will be shown at the Alta on Sunday.

Although starting her young life from the wrong end—that of the dance halls and saloons of this vile mining town, "Colonel Billy" has the good, straightforward honesty of character which holds the liking and half-admiration of the men, at least, of the community, she is respected on account of her fairness of mind and accuracy with the gun.

Her own sex treat her with contempt but it is to this woman of the underworld that they all turn in time of trouble, with the full knowledge that they will receive all the help in her power.

Later, when she finds out that there is no "percentage" in the life she is leading, she has the courage to lift herself out of the depths into an atmosphere of straightness and respect. Miss Storey gives a wonderful characterization of this complex woman—making her at all times thoroughly human and likable, and it is with a feeling of gladness, in the end that we see her happy in the right way.
