

In Emergency.

The man who can meet emergency, who can rise to the occasion, is the man who will succeed," declares Charles M. Schwab, "the chap who was one evening suddenly confronted by a discontented wife. She said: "Before we were married you used to bring me flowers every day, but now you never think of getting me even a bunch of violets."

The Wonderful Call When Baby Comes

Like the Blast of Heavenly Trumpets, When Call of Motherhood is Felt.

Of all the most vital times in a woman's life the coming of baby is fraught with the greatest meaning. Care should be exercised to insure that the crisis is passed in safety. Apprehension is avoided by the timely use of Mother's Friend, a preparation of penetrating oils and medicinal ingredients which renders the muscles, cords, tendons and ligaments pliable, and thus tension is avoided. The usual symptoms, nausea, bearing-down and stretching pains are counteracted and the period is one of calm repose.

THE LEAGUE COVENANT

THE AUTHORS OF THESE ARTICLES: William H. Taft, ex-President of the United States. George W. Wickersham, formerly U. S. Atty. General. A. Lawrence Lowell, President Harvard University. Henry W. Taft, of the New York Bar. THE PURPOSE: To discuss and make clear the various articles of the Paris Covenant for a League of Nations, now awaiting ratification by the United States Senate. Today's Letter Takes Up

ARTICLES XIV AND XV Court of International Justice The Council is directed by Article XIV to formulate plans for a permanent Court of International Justice. Those who are familiar with the debates on this subject at the Hague Conference, and the difficulties encountered there in reconciling the claims of the large and small nations, will understand why no attempt was made to work out a complete plan and embody it in the Covenant. Resort to this court is not made obligatory; it is to be established as a tribunal to which disputes of a justiciable character can be submitted for decision by consent of both parties. It has also another significant function, for it consists of a body of jurists whose opinion may be sought by the Council or the Assembly as an assistance in matters that come before them. Although the members of the League do not agree to submit disputes that may arise between them to this court or to arbitrators, they must submit them to some organ of the League. They agree not only to abstain from war without such a submission, but positively also to submit any dispute likely to lead to a rupture to inquiry by the Council or Assembly, if it is not submitted by consent to arbitration; and either party to the dispute may demand the inquiry. The matter stands thus. For arbitration compliance with the award being involved, the free consent of both parties is required; for inquiry the demand of either; but at the request of either party the case is laid before the Assembly instead of the Council. The Assembly thus stands in the position of a jury at Common Law. Neither party to the dispute can refuse the inquiry, but either can elicit this form of trial.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had children in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio. Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did. Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

When a dispute is referred to the Council it begins its work not in a judicial capacity, but as a mediator. It seeks, not to decide the dispute, but to effect a settlement which will often involve a compromise. In contradiction to a strictly judicial procedure, which ought to be public.

and overcoming many of its difficulties. Thus far the fleet has covered an area containing 4000 mines. Of these 45 per cent have been accounted for. Where the remaining 55 per cent are, nobody knows. Captain Sexton estimated the mine hunt would keep the sweepers busy until October or November. It involves a personnel of about 2500. When the word was first mouthed around through the ranks that American gobs were going to pick up the mines they helped to lay a short time before, the general opinion was that it would be one of the most thrilling jobs yet. And no one has been disappointed. Equipped with maps showing approximately where every mine was dropped, the flotilla started out in twos, each air dragging a cable between them. The mines, the map said, were sown in strings. All the sweepers had to do was to straddle the line, pass from one end to the other and the cables between them, would do the rest. Of course, the particular mine in question wouldn't be the only one to go off. The concussion would always set off others immediately adjoining, and probably still others adjoining these. These two exigencies were provided for on the map under the titles "zone of extreme danger," "zone of possible danger" and beyond that "zone of safety." In addition, there would be a few other mines free-lancing around in all three zones. The first few days were rather disastrous. Captain Sexton and his staff in London began to dread opening the morning's dispatches. Gradually with Yankee resourcefulness, the Americans seemed to be getting on top of the job, until now Captain Sexton is confident they are going to clean up the assignment with minimum losses.

HAD OCCULT NEWS OF SON, BADLY WOUNDED

Soldier Tells Strange Story, Has Letter to Prove Experience.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—This is a story of a young corporal who is a patient of Walter Reed hospital. It is a story so unusual that if it were not verified even by the postmark on the envelope bearing the letter it would seem preposterous, if not incredible. The young man in question is Leroy Dawson, whose father is a business man of Los Angeles, and is cashier of one of the largest film factories at Hollywood. On November 10 Dawson's father wrote him a letter of love and greeting. The envelope bears the date of November 11, 1918. Shortly before that the family received word from the War Department that young Dawson had been seriously wounded, but absolutely no details were given. He was wounded at St. Mihiel and was for weeks in a hospital at Limoges, above which flew a British and a French flag. His right eye was gone and his nose was shot away.

FISHING FOR MINES IN THE NORTH SEA

U. S. Jackies Planted Them; Now They're Digging Them Out of the Ocean. Navy mine sweepers are busy today in the North Sea at a job almost as dangerous and, from the viewpoint of shipping, quite as important as hunting submarines. They are clearing away the largest mine barrage in the world. This barrage, nearly 80 per cent American-made and American-laid mines, is about 200 miles long and 45 miles wide. It closes the North Sea from Scotland to Norway.

shape. While in the hospital in France he contracted pneumonia and further called me up at the studio and read the message, and the boys in the office knew what it was about. The next day one of the boys came over to my desk and asked me if I were willing to risk 50 cents to find out about my boy. I said, "surely was, although I never take no such an fortune teller at the time. He told me to go and get a fortune teller—one that he had seen himself and said was a good one. The first thing she said to me, 'You have some one very close to you over yonder. I see him in a big building. I see a British flag and a French flag. It is a hospital in France. I see him in bed, and, to, but his head hurts him terribly; it is all bandaged and so is part of his left side. His left arm is lashed up and tied to his head. He has lost his right eye, his left eye is all right.' The father winds up his letter thus: 'I really hope you are on your way and that this letter passes you on the ocean. Don't worry if they did miss you up a little; you wouldn't trade places with the Kaiser.'
