HE LUSTED FOR GOLD AND A GIRL

Secret tunnels, hidden ingots of gold and a mysterious hermit are some of the factors in "Perils of Thunder Mountain," latest serial masterpiece to reach the screen. In the fifth episode of this serial, which will be shown at the Pastime theatre today interest engendered in the story of John Davis honest miner, and his foes who seek to wrest control of a mine from him reaches the high point. Due to the intervention of a strange and unknown personage and the kindly watchfulness of the girl he loves, John Davis is enabled to escape the various traps designed by his enemies to bring about his death.

Both Hawks Morgan, his cousin, an archrival foe, nor John Davis, who jointly inherited the mine after their uncle, one frosty morning, had disappeared over an icy precipice and was given up for dead, accorded to this strange interloper certain happenings in their lives, be they good or evil, which they cannot explain.

Too, Morgan often finds in this ever elusive hermit of the mountains a convenient shield and alibi for his misdeeds. Morgan's motive, of course, is to secure full possession of the mine and to nullify a clause in the will which makes it a condition that the bulk of the proceeds be set aside for charity. To this provision Davis staunchly clings, wherefore resulted the original schism in the relationship of the twain Morgan's many and devilishly ingenious attempts to put Davis out of the way.

Antonio Moreno and Carol Holloway intrepid team of thrill makers, are stars of "Perils of Thunder Mountain." In their support is a cast especially qualified to meet any unusual demands made upon physical resources aside of possessing proven histrionic adeptness. "Perils of Thunder Mountain" was devised by those master craftsmen of chapter-plays, Messrs. Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady.

MYSTIC POWER OF RADIUM

Science enters into the making of motion pictures in a greater degree each year and soon we will have all of the latest inventions utilized in some manner or another on our screens. Radium and the X-ray are both utilized in the second episode of "The Tiger's Trail," the new Pathé Serial, starting Ruth Roland, which will be shown at the Pastime theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday of each week. Miss Roland, as Belle Boyd, the heroine of the Serial and George Larkin as Jack Randall, a young mining engineer, are in search of a certain Tiger Idol which has a very wonderful power in that its eyes glow when the little image comes near Radium. They are convinced that "Grim" Gordon, Belle's guardian, has secured the Idol in some hidden niche in the walls of the house. So they secure a phial of Radium and by passing this along the walls of each room finally locate the Idol as the Radium causes its eyes to glow and shine right through the walls of the room. The dangerous properties of Radium are recognized by all scientists and physicians who handle this valuable mineral. A great many physicians have lost their lives through Radium burns and the substance is always kept in special lead containers.

In another episode of "The Tiger's Trail" Gordon, who experiments considerably with Radium, is shown in a specially constructed laboratory whose walls and furniture are all of stone. In projecting Radium Rays any inflammable substance such as wood would burst into flame if the rays touched it so the stone furniture enables Gordon to conduct his experiments with no element of danger by fire.

Simple Operations Fitted Together

The business of Swift & Company is the fitting together of many simple operations.

No one thing in a packing business is particularly difficult for men trained to do it; but no one thing is enough.

Thousands of other operations, properly performed, are necessary for the completed processes. And someone must fit together all these thousands of simple operations.

The success with which a packing business performs its function of supplying the best possible meat products to the consumer with the greatest possible benefit to both him and the producer depends upon the energy, brains, experience, and faithful effort of the men trained in the business.

Swift & Company turns the producer's live stock into meat for the consumer at a profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound, because it fits these operations together with the least waste, overlapping, and friction.

got out of the cage, and ran right at you! Well, now, just what would you do?

That is the situation that confronted Dorothy Gish when "Boots" her newest Paramount picture, which will be shown at the Alta theatre, today was being made at the Hollywood, Calif., studios. And to make matters much worse, Miss Gish knew that the horrible camera was being turned every second and that all the attempts she might make to get away from that mouse would be indelibly registered on the film.

That had not been arranged for in the story, and it wasn't quite fair, of course, she didn't think that all out during the moments when she was threatened by this tiny rodent running around loose on the stage, because she was trying to listen to Elmer Clifton, her director, and at the same time save herself from the ferocious beast that insisted on getting right under her feet every time it had the opportunity.

There were tables and chairs and other things in the room and Dorothy made good use of them. The mice, by the way, have a lot to do with the story, and when the scene was finished Miss Gish consented to go through a little more of the ordeal in order to have the whole thing in the picture. Miss Gish is splendidly supported in this photoplay.

Creel Can Find Nobody To Take $200,000 Fund; No Provision is Made

WASHINGTON, July 30.—George Creel is in the embarrassing situation of being unable to get rid of $200,000 in cash and quick assets. There is no longer a bureau of public information, but when that organization passed into history no provision was made for handling its possessions. The board spent about $7,000,000 in two years. It, however, earned $3,000,000, which was turned back to the government. There remains in the custody of the non-existent institution $20,000 in a bank in Paris, bills for $50,000 due from various cities, office furniture, all over the world, marketable moving picture films, and a small balance of the government money due from the agents who came back to this country after the bureau had ceased to be.

Creel divorced himself from the pay roll last March. He has been in Washington a number of times since trying to find somebody to whom he can turn over these responsibilities, and so far without success. The archives and account of Auditor Hobbs, who remains in the old headquarters. He has no right to dip into the bureau's funds to pay the rent. He can draw no salary.

Neither Hobbs nor Creel can collect the money that is due, check up the expense accounts of the agents and receive their balances. It is anything but a joke to them, for though they cannot get rid of the money or the archives they are responsible under their bonds for both.
