Jury Press Murderer.
SEATTLE, Sept. 20.—Pete Perkovien, the first Seattle man to face a first degree murder charge since capital punishment was re-established in Washington, was freed after 9 hours' deliberation by the jurors last night. The law provides the jury may recommend the death sentence. Perkovien claimed he stabbed Pete Covak during a drunken orgy after he was himself attacked. Twenty-nine citizens refused to sit on the jury because of disbelief in capital punishment.

ENTER BUTTONS TO REPLACE THE MAID

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Buttons in the wall will replace the servant girl and end the hired help problem, according to electrical experts, who are planning the Electrical Exposition, to be held in Grand Central Palace, New York, beginning September 24.
 A model home will be constructed at the exposition which will control electrical contrivances designed to do anything a servant can do from serving breakfast to dusting.
 The idea originated with Arthur Williams, federal food administrator of New York, who is also head of the electrical exposition.

LONDON.—The secret's out. Miss Maud Sygne, welfare worker, says the principal things girls talk about when men aren't near are: "Houses, boys, and health."
