Rabid Cattle in Washington. An outbreak of rables among six calves in Stevens county, Wash, has been reported to the headquarters of the biological survey here. Two if the animals died from the disease and the others have been isolated. Bites from a rabid coyete are thought to have been responsible. The only other case of rables known to exist at present is a cow, 25 miles east of Bend. Rables has been less frequent this summer than at any time since 1910, according to officers of the sur-vey here. vey here

Man, Woman Charge Desertion. were filed

Two divorce actions were filed with County Clerk R. T. Brown today, both charging desertion. J. E. Adams, of Athena, charges that his wife, Mrs. C. G. Adams, deserted him one year ago, after having been married since September, 1890. They have four grown and one minor chil-dren and the plaintiff asks the custody of the minor, a boy 10 years old. He is represented by Homer I. Watts. Mrs. Ida M. Allen charges that Frank L. Allen deserted her on April 4, 1918 although they had been married only since January 19,1918. She is repre-sented by James A. Fee.
