SHARE OF RULE PROFITS TALK

try, a thing which the president has declared must come. He has never explained the phrase in detail but briefly it is taken as meaning that he believes the workers must have a larger share in the management of enterprises.

Those broadly are the three things it is hoped to bring from the meeting that opened to-day.

Strikes Are Topics

Some of the specific questions which will be before the delegates are the strike of steel workers, the postponed strike of railroad shopmen, the scores of small strikes that are in progress now the plumb plan for nationalization of railroads—all problems which enter into the present critical industrial situation.

While it is known that the president has had in mind for some time the calling of an industrial conference, the situation brought about by demands of the railroad and steel men brought the call for it on Labor Day. It met with approval of labor leaders.

22 Represent Public

The present named 22 representatives of the public. Most of these men are either looked upon as members of the employed or employing class. Twenty-two other representatives were named by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the American Federation of Labor, investment bankers and farm organizations.

In his invitations to the conference, as in his original call for it, the president emphasized that it was for the development of a new relationship between capital and labor.

Delegates who assembled to-day ranged from socialists to men like John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Judge Elbert Gary.

The 22 men named by the President to represent the public in the industrial conference were: Bernard M. Baruch, of New York; Robert S. Brookings, of St. Louis; John D. Rockefeller, Jr.; Judge Elbert Gary, of New York; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard; Charles Edward Russell, of New York; John S. Garg, of Vermont; O. E. Bradford, of Ohio; Ward Burgess, Nebraska; Fuller T. Calloway, La Grange, Georgia; Thomas L. Chadbourne, of New York; Charles G. Dawes, Chicago; H. R. Endicott, Milton, Mass.; Paul L. Felsch, Cleveland, Ohio; Edwin P. Gay, Harvard University; George R. James, Memphis, Tenn.; Thomas E. Jones, Chicago; A. A. London, Buffalo; D. T. Meredith, Des Moines, Ia.; Gavin McNab, San Francisco; L. D. Sweet, Carbondale, Colorado; and Louis Titus, San Francisco.

Railroad Men Change Minds.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The four railroad brotherhoods today decided to accept representation at the Roundtable industrial conference, opening this afternoon. The delegates are President Lee of the trainmen; President Shea of the firemen; President Sheppard of the conductors, and legislative Agent Wills of the Engineers.

Durkee Herders Fight.

Some little trouble has occurred in the region of Durkee, Oregon, between Greek sheepherders and Biological Survey trappers, according to news brought today by C. P. Watson, survey official who has been at Durkee on a field trip. A Greek herder recently beat up a trapper to such an extent that the Survey has decided to take action if such an occurrence is repeated. The herders, it is alleged, like to trap and sell the skins and they feel that government men are invading their territory. Another cause for friction is that sometimes sheep accidentally get caught in Survey traps.

Low Prices Quoted Too High.

Growers of alfalfa hay in the Hermitage district are not asking $20 a ton in the stack, as reported to the East Oregonian market page Saturday. Local sheep men said today, exporters of alfalfa hay last week were at $15 in the stack, while an Echo grower was trying to get 1.5 for his with no buyers. Several weeks ago the hay price was obtained, but such is the case now.
