HUMBLE CHAP CONQUERS WHOLE WORLD—FOR MOVIE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.—Napoleon, Alexander the Great and J. Caesar were pliers compared to V. Kanatsher, apparently humble aviation lieutenant, of Los Angeles.

It took the old time conquerors years to subdue a bit of the old world, but Kanatsher in a single month has beaten into submission two thirds of Mexico, most of Abyssinia, all of Germany, and of Turkey, has conquered the Mojave Desert three times, twice led his victorious armies through the heart of the Sahara and—well chasing outlaws through the Canadian woods and cutting into ribbons a half dozen Indian tribes has been but a moment's diversion for him.

And he does it so easily. Kanatsher awakens each morning like an ordinary individual and an hour later the phone rings.

"Send down an army," is the order he gets. "Need some men to drive Villa out of Chihuahua."

In another hour Kanatsher, at the head of some 300 of Uncle Sam's soldiers is releasing the kidnapped heroine and has Villa doing a shimmy dance for his pleasure.

Peculiar chap this Kanatsher? Not at all. He's just the man in charge of the moving picture department of the Soldiers and Sailors' Employment Bureau of Los Angeles—a quasi-military organization which handles the job of getting jobs for discharged service men.

He has solved the "mob" and the "army" problem for the movies. When a studio manager wants an army, he just calls Kanatsher and in an hour an army of most any size is doing its duty—without regard to what the duty may be.

"We'll furnish them anything," said Kanatsher. "If they want a gang of pirates, we've got 'em. Or a mob to throw eggs—say, hand grenade practice built up fine accuracy for agents. Or perhaps an Indian tribe? Aw, that's easy; how many do you want?"

"But armies are our specialty. There always are men around here with their uniforms handy and that saves costuming at the studio. And the boys know how to do it. We can produce a better army in five minutes than a studio could build up in six months rehearsals."

"We've conquered about every land on the face of the globe at one time or another and one or two on Mars, I think."
