"Good Old America"

There are many paintings and copies of paintings, and word pictures and stories, depicting the attractive scenery and life in foreign lands. The farmstead in rural France, does seem picturesque, the women digging in the fields of Flanders are unusual to us, the crooked streets of Constantinople with its latticed windows and veiled women are odd. But ask any returned soldier or anyone who has lived amongst people of these way-off lands, and they will tell you "Good Old America" is good enough for me.

Cattle Starve to Death.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 26.—Unless there comes a decided break in the weather in northwest Utah there is danger of grave loss in sheep and cattle according to Dave Thomas, chief deputy United States marshal, who has returned from a tour of the region. In the vicinity of Ketchikan, 150 cattle already have died of starvation, he said. A few of the larger ranchers have succeeded in getting feed, according to Thomas, but the position of the smaller owner is precarious.

KNEE PANTS—LAVENDER ONES AT THAT—LATEST PERIL FOR GENTLEMAN

BY MARGARET ROHE
Folks talk so much of female styles. The men feel slighted quite. And so they're planing daring things To make themselves a sight.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The coming year promises to be a wide open season indeed for valves. Women will soon be found running around unhampered by the mere detail of a skirt long enough to hide their curves until the men have become nearly desperate for an opportunity to show that they have a perfectly good understanding of what's nifty in the mode themselves. Now they are about to burst forth in all their opulence with knee breeches as a first aid to calf emancipation. At least that is the rumor that is go-ins round and though we have been threatened with a return of these early winter small clothes, almost every year that somehow failed to materialize this time it really looks as if they would come true. Just calling to mind off handedly the vision of your male friends and relatives in bathing suits or golf togs it would seem as if this threatened pantie shortening were going to be an awful blow to aesthetic art. Still there is always the comforting assurance that, although according to Ellis Parker Butler, "Pigs is Pigs," calves are not always calves and that often a silk stockings covers a multitude of symmetricals as they say in the profession. And then there is all the color excitement that King Alphonso has started with his new lavender clothes. It's quite natural for the Spanish monarch to don half-mourning for the kinging business which is now almost as dead as a door nail but whether the less royal males will adopt the purple mauve and violent violet tints as the color scheme for their 1920 outfits is a question that is still an open one at the time of going to press. Mark Twain tried mighty hard to make white the smart background of the modish male and someone else, I forget just who, essayed to put over dark blue. Now along comes Alphonso with a little dash of lavender and if there is anything in the saying that "the third's the charm," purple pants ought to be a go.

Both the knee breeches and the mauve tints are still in the office, however, but, oh, my dear, what reality's here is something almost too much to bear. Pale pink, baby blue and delicate orchid pajamas of crepe de chine, for Tom, Dick and Harry not forgetting Percy. Oh, shades of Polly Chase, as the pink pajama girl, the blue pajama boy promises to be the bright particular star of this sartorial season.

For more robust temperaments there are hectic pajama effects in black silk with futuristic spotsches of vivid color and all over designs in bright hued silk like high art creations in their hues and motifs. These last the obliging clerk assured me were most excellent for traveling. I suppose he meant because the colors are all fast. I have a very strong hunch however, that pater familias wouldn't get very far in them without being dragged to the hous gov.

Kaufman Buys McClure's.
NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—McClure's magazine has been bought by Herbert Kaufman, poet, author and editorial writer, it was announced by Frederick L. Collins, president of the company. All the stock of McClure's Publications, Incorporated, went to Mr. Kaufman in the purchase, Mr. Collins said. Mr. Kaufman will be editor of the magazine, it was stated, and no other change in the staff is contemplated. His new enterprise will be the following men, it was announced: Leon Schinasi, tobacco manufacturer; J. F. Preenahan, manufacturer and former Collins, publisher of McClure's for several years; J. O'Hara, Congrove, formerly managing editor of Everybody's magazine, and Edgar Simon, former editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine.
