AN OVERSEAS DIARY

Sunday, Aug. 25.—This is a beautiful morning and cool since the rain. This Flanders mud is true to all traditions. I have found it good for one thing. When a whizz-bang hits a soft spot, the report of the explosion is a very mild plop and the force of it so deadened that one would stand a fighting chance of not being hurt by the bomb hit within a few feet of him. I noticed an old wheel barrow along the road yesterday. A bomb lit today within six feet of it, and the rim of the shell hole extended within two feet of the barrow but it was not overturned by the explosion. Yet it was about an evenly filled with mud as tho it had been done by hand. We were told that when you hear the whine of a bomb, that it has already past you, and that you never hear the one that lights behind you or that "gets" you. I am not doubting science nor questioning the laws of sound according to physics, but but I am just recording here so as to remember what my cerebellum, or my medulla oblongata or some part of my thinking apparatus told me to do under such circumstances. "In Flanders field where poppies bloom." The message delivered to me was "Duck your head kid, safety first, it may be five hundred feet high and past, or it may drop at your feet." Instantly one ducked his head.

Sunday, Aug. 25.—Orders were sent us not to open the canteen during daylight lest the men assemble in the road which was being shelled any time several people appeared in it. We put in all the day, tho it was Sunday, making shelves and fixing up the canteen so as to serve the men as soon as night came on. We marked off many funny and inviting signs to bring a smile to the men, as they made their purchases. I had gathered bouquets of sweet peas and nasturtiums and the ever present poppies. Thus the canteen was made as inviting as possible, tho at best it was just a shack. Here we are in a slight salient north of Kemmel Hill, so the front line is both south and north of us. The shells are coming mostly from the south right over or off Kemmel Hill. More than a dozen observation balloons are up white planes are maneuvering above them. Some of the balloons and planes are being fired at by the Hun guns and as the bombs burst great black puffs show that they have missed their mark. So many bombs are being put into the city of Poperinghe and right over our heads that the boys have begun to call them "the Poperinghe Express." Others are dropping short of us along a heavily camouflaged road back of which there is a large battery of British naval guns. These are being apparently shunted back and forth along a small railroad. When they speak at their nearest point to us the earth quivers and things on our shelves take a tumble.

HOUSEHOLD

The children will not make a big lip at the rice pudding if you pour over it this sauce—and put plenty of raisins in the pudding:

Vanilla Cream Sauce

Boil one pint milk with a quarter of a split vanilla bean. Mix a quarter pound sugar with two whole eggs and a spoonful of sifted flour. Pour milk over mixture and put over a low fire. Stir constantly, and when thick add a cup of cream.

Sweet Potatoes

This is the grand sweet potato dish: Peel and slice boiled sweet potatoes and put into a buttered shirred egg dish or piepan. Add a little salt, pour over a little molasses and twice as much maple syrup, sprinkle powdered sugar over all and dot with bits of butter. Bake until brown.

IT WOULD DEMORALIZE SCHOOL WORK

THERE is public approval of the idea that the teaching profession should be better paid and there will always be approval of the contention that teachers be treated with fairness and justice.

While teachers, in convention or out, work to accomplish these ends they will find support because they are on firm ground. When, however, they are urged to demand soviet methods of conducting school affairs let them beware because they should not and will not obtain anything of that sort.

News reports from the Portland convention just closed show that the teachers assembled were given some absurd advice along this line. The following from the Oregonian's story of the session illustrates the point in question:

The main topic for discussion, that of a plan to organize an elective council of teachers to act as an advisory board with whom the school board would have to consult as to appointment, promotion and discharge of teachers, was presented by Professor H. B. Torrey of Reed college. After outlining the difficulties and limitations of the teachers under the present system and the injustices that are the subject of general complaint, Professor Torrey suggested the proposed council as the remedy.

Professor Torrey closed his address with an earnest plea for the support by teachers of some such plan to save the teaching profession from "entirely losing its respectability," and that while teachers are expected to teach democracy, they are "governed" by a public school system which is the most complete and absolute autocracy in the world.

An elective council, such as suggested, with which a school board would have to consult regarding appointments, promotions and discharges of teachers, would be a radical departure indeed, if as assumed, the council would have the power to veto any action by the board. It would be the "Plumb plan" applied to school affairs. It would mean that the employe assumes the duties of the employer as well as of the employe. It wont work and Russia provides the proof.

Soft headed men like Mr. Torrey overlook the public interest in such affairs as these. The public pays for school work and is entitled to direct the management of affairs. This is done through a school board, the members of which are elected by the people through their ballots. If a school board does not give good service the remedy is to get another board—not to take power out of the hands of the board and place it in an elective council of teachers.

The public will never stand for the Torrey theory because the people want results and the best results could never be obtained under his scheme. Good school work requires direction and discipline. The Torrey idea would produce demoralization.

FOR NEW AND OLD

DURING the past year Pendleton has made good progress in a civic way but the city has had the misfortune to lose some able men by death and by removal from the city. However, new people are constantly arriving and young men are developing more mature powers of leadership. So the old places need not long remain vacant. It is desirable during the coming year that we maintain a friendly, cooperative spirit for the further upbuilding and improvement of the city. New people should be made welcome and urged to take their places in the community life. If you are an oldtimer you can help Pendleton and help yourself by making a systematic effort to get in touch with those who are new in the city. If a newcomer, resolve to step forth and let people know that you are here.

Wherever people have voted on the peace treaty they have shown themselves overwhelmingly for ratifying the treaty as it stands. They are strongly opposed to the Lodge resolutions. The senate should take note.

McAdoo understands what he is about and does not intend to ride his horse to death before the race gets underway.

Better to make a few resolutions and keep them than to make many and forget them.

May this be the finest year you have ever lived.
