DIRECTOR REPORTS TO GUNPLAY TO OBTAIN REALISM

The result of a director's artifice is emphatically illustrated in the Thomas H. Ince-Paramount picture, "Bill Henry," starring Charles Ray, which will be shown at the Alta theatre today. In this production the script called for a negro porter to jump quickly with a frightened look. Jerry Storm, the director, put take the character through the scene a dozen times without getting the desired look.

Then he whispered to his assistant director and turning back to the scene conducted another rehearsal. A few minutes had elapsed and he said, "All right, we'll take it. Get ready, Camera." The cameraman started turning the crank. The negro was standing close to the back of the set. When the time came that he was to jump and look frightened, a gun exploded right behind the scene. Jerry Storm secured the proper expression on the colored man's face by this trick. The assistant director came forth with the shotgun in his hand and inquired, "Well, did you get it?" "We sure did," replied Mr. Storm.

Because of the rapid succession of surprising events, the nation has little time to this hectic epoch to indulge in much watchful waiting.

MENAGERIE ON MOTOR TRUCKS
Menagerie On Motor Trucks
Enroute to Film Location

Twenty-five California towns, especially the sheriff of each county, were thrown into a state of turmoil recently when the great animal menagerie which was brought to the attention of the public by the film "Back to God's Country," adapted from the magazine story "Wapi, the Walrus," by James Oliver Curwood, and which will be shown at the Arcade Theatre, today, was seen travelling through the villages.

Mistaking the production forces of the Curwood-Carver Company for a mammoth travelling circus, many sheriffs demanded that they be shown exhibition permits, which are necessary in that state. When James Oliver Curwood, probably the best known writer of animal stories in America, attempted to convince them that the large company was a motion picture outfit, his explanations were frequently met by scoffs.

Several dozen animals, with bears and tigers in iron-barred cages, all but convinced the natives that the procession, while en route to location for scenes in "Back to God's Country," was really a circus trying to attract attention.

in Ending Coal Strike

John J. Keegan

Little mention of John J. Keegan, member of the United States Employment Compensation Commission, was made during the coal strike negotiations, but he played a very important part. He acted as go-between in bringing about the conference between Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer and John L. Lewis, head of the striking mine workers, which resulted in the ending of the country's greatest coal strike. This photograph was taken as he was leaving the White House after a conference with officials.

MEXICAN FARMER IS READY TO GO TO WORK

EL SALVADOR, H. TURNER (United Press Staff Correspondent.) SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, Jan. 2.—The Mexican of this section wants to go to work.

A disposition to resume normal agricultural activity is becoming increasingly evident today, according to both Americans and Mexicans of San Luis Potosi. Different forms of evidence are offered to substantiate the belief that the farmer is gaining a renewed sense of industry—and different reasons are advanced which is said to be laying its hand on the district. In some quarters you hear that the Carranza government is meeting increased success in its efforts to restore order; in other circles, you are told that landlords are still active, but have established a "toll" with the people; and still further questioning reveals the simple explanation that the Mexican is growing tired of fighting and is ready for work.

Work already is well under way in districts not infected by trouble-makers. The corn crop this year is more favorable than last and in regions which are still unsettled this fact has prompted the desire to resume producing.

One barometer of conditions is the number of inquiries received here for agricultural implements. Farm machinery, hardware and tools are among the chief imports received in San Luis Potosi from the United States, not so much for sale in this center as for distribution throughout Central Mexico. Ten of the twenty-seven states of Mexico are contiguous to San Luis Potosi. Dealers in agricultural implements report that while their sales are not up to normal, they have exceeded the demand for the past two or three years. By "normal" they mean the pre-revolutionary period.

The sale of farm machinery does not imply, altogether, that the Mexican farmer has awakened to the advantage to be gained from modern agricultural methods. While this tendency is noticeable in some places, other factors are more pronounced. Supplies, depleted by Mexico's internal warfare, need replenishing. Labor is scarce. Many of the farms have left the farms either for the safer environment of the cities or for the more remunerative and more stable life of the United States. There is a shortage, too, in work animals, hundreds of oxen having been seized by itinerant marauders.

Now that there is an inclination to resume work, the modern products of American factories are called upon to fill the gap created by revolution. If the inclination becomes a permanent state of mind—and is given a chance to develop—it will mean much in the stabilizing of Mexico.

According to a recent report, the ex-kaiser has just saved his 12,000th cow. If he is not restrained, that number will be increased.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

EAT LESS AND TAKE
SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much meat and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

ST. Johns, Jan. 1.—Twenty-two bodies of victims of wreck of the Dutch steamer Anton Van Driel are washing along the shore of St. Mary's bay, first swept on the crests of giant combers and then carried out to sea, but always out of reach of boats. Only four bodies have been recovered.

Trick Hair.
My little brother, Bobby, always liked to have Mr. L. call, because he could perform an act which awed as well as amused him greatly—wriggle his hair. One evening, during such a performance, Bobby said wistfully, "You can wriggle yours, sister can take hers clear off and lay it on the bureau, and I can't do a thing with mine."—Chicago Tribune.

"You don't even wait for night to ply your nefarious trade?" "No," answered the metropolitan bandit: "we believe in daylight saving, we do."—Washington Star.
