Growing Faster than Pendleton.
Pendleton's growth and the attendant housing problem is shadowed by that of Shawnee, Oklahoma, if a communication received by the Pendleton Commercial Association this morning from that city's chamber is not exaggerated. Expects Large Receipts.
Receipts from the Umatilla National Forest for the fiscal year which ends June 30, 1920, will be in the neighborhood of $25,000, according to an estimate made today by W. W. Cryder, forest supervisor, who expects a big increase over the receipts for the fiscal year of 1919, when the total was $15,606.95. Last year the receipts were almost double those of 1918 when the total was $8,846. The receipts are derived from fees for grazing for special uses, and from the sale of timber. The fee for the grazing of cattle is 72 cents a head and for 12 cents a head. The prices vary a little according to the season. All the funds are turned over to the forestry department by Mr. Cryder to revert to this county and are used for road and school funds.
