"THE LIFE LINE" A BIG TOURNEUR FILM
WITH GYPSY HERO

The glamour and romance surrounding the nomadic life of the English gypsies has been put on the screen by Maurice Tourneur in his new production for Paramount Pictures, "The Life Line," which will be the attraction at the Arcade Theatre next Thursday. The story was originally entitled "The Romany Rye," by George R. Sims and as a stage play was produced some twenty years ago at the Lyceum Theatre, London. The theme centers around the attractive leader of the gypsy band, who is the real owner of a fine English estate. He had for his inheritance leads to many exciting episodes including a thrilling fire in a London theatre and a rescue at sea by means of a breeches buoy of the heroine from a sinking ship.

A competent cast interprets the big story. Jack Holt and Pauline Stark have the leading roles, and others are Selma Brown, Tully Marshall, Wallace Beery and Lewis Cole.

Theatre today. It is a thrilling story depicting the life in the period before the revolution when the czar still held his throne although the masses were murmuring revolt. The photoplay, however, involves only indirectly the political upheaval.

Miss Brady plays the role of Vera Stupoff, a beautiful young music teacher, the daughter of a retired Major in the Russian army, who is seized on the streets of Petrograd by three courting officers of the Imperial Guard, dragged into a hotel and ruined by one of them; in the pitch darkness, she cannot identify the offender.

The Countess Zastina, an influential patroness of Vera, gets the czar to arrest the three officers; and he orders Count Nisho, as the eldest, to marry the girl. She, however, refuses to return home to her father. The mob comes to lynch the imprisoned Countess. Vera warns them, but too late; yet she succeeds in rescuing Nisho in a wounded and unconscious condition. When he awakes, his first thought is of Vera, despite his former constant refusal to tell her who he is the guilty man; now he confesses and sets her mind at rest.

There has been a terrible, trying time, but they have found their heaven the feature attracted here at the Alta of rest and undisturbed love at last.

INCOME TAX POINTS
The manager of an incorporated business asked me to look over his Income Tax Return of last year. I did so, with the result that I found that he was not getting the benefits of several provisions of law to which his kind of business is entitled. Among other things he THOUGHT he was getting the benefit of all the depreciation to which he was entitled. His accounting methods have been revised to show the facts. As a result he will pay only the amount of tax which he should pay.
