Benny Leonard, present holder of the title, and Johnny Dundee, chief contender for the honors, were to mix it in a 20-round bout which ring followers declare will be a grueling fight from start to finish.

With general opinion favoring Leonard with more than usual interest in the fight, will be the first one over the long route the challenger has had with the Bronx boy. And he has often claimed that the short round limit previously handicapped him in his previous engagements with the champ. He confidently expects to wait home the victor if he is able to stand up under the first half of the bout.

There are many who feel that Benny must give the Scotch Wop a finishing blow in the first half or pay the penalty by putting his crown in jeopardy. Others point to Leonard's latest line of battle in which he has been underling out the fun with a knock-out in the early minutes such as on two recent occasions in the second round. They are of the opinion that Benny has foregone the old trick of merely protecting himself and letting his opponent land the full fight.

Marks Second Risk
This marks the second time the champion has risked his title since he copped it from Freddie Welsh in the spring of 1917.

The relative merits of the two are indeed worthy of notice. In Leonard is a man of undoubted ability—as witness his many and successful fights; his fast footwork is a treat to the fan; his quick feinting amazes the fighter of even good merit, and, withal, his meritorious cheerfulness and sportsmanship while in the ring.
