KRUPPS STRIPS OFF WEAPONS OF DEATH FOR USEFUL TOOLS

Transformation in Famous Manufacturing Plant is Kept From Peace Time Status by Lack of Coal, Transportation

BY CARL D. GROAT. (United States Staff Correspondent.) ESSEN, Germany, Jan. 22.—The Krupp works are shifting gradually forth into peacetime production. This famous plant, generally synonymous with cannons and shells manufacture, is stripping away the tools that made weapons of death or converting them into implements of useful production. This transformation has proceeded to the extent where the actual production of peacetime goods has reached.

Only the disruption of coal supply and transportation stands in the Krupp path. Its officials, from Herr Krupp von Bohlen down, say the industrial situation at the moment is very difficult from the coal and transportation collapse, though they believe they will meet rapidly with improvement of food distribution, betterment of output and repairing of the railways.

Light is a Dinner. One reaches Essen in the early morning, and through the gray dawn peeps out over a city that normally would sparkle with mill lamps, with the glow of furnaces against a smoky background. The lamps, the furnaces and the smoke are here, but in a restricted measure. One cannot gather the impression of wartime industry nor yet of the normal peacetime basis. It has not yet reached that point.

And the best illustration of the extent to which business is restored can be gained from the fact that a white collar stays fairly white until night—not like a white collar in Pittsburgh which is ruined before noon.

That is part of the picture, Essen is laboring under difficulties, but is on the upgrade.

Roads in Terrible Plight. The terrible plight of the German railway rolling stock furnished such material which Krupp could handle without special machinery alteration. Hence, the halls which formerly saw cannons and the like turned out with amazing rapidity and thoroughness are now crammed with decrepit engines waiting for the Krupp doctor.

Krupps have found their crucible steel process produces a steel that can be used for locomotive boilers. It has been Germany's difficulty that the copper for boilers was exhausted and that the iron or steel substitutes burned out quickly. This difficulty is obviated through the Krupp process.

Hence, much business of repairing wheezy, worn-out locomotives.

Then, too, the Krupps have gone into the making of new locomotives and their plants can produce entire railway systems. The first of this business was launched recently when a spick and span locomotive, laurel entwined and be-ribboned chugged out of the halls of Krupps pulling ten freight "wagons"—the whole train made in the plant.

In six months, a similar train can be turned out daily if present estimates hold true.

A Locomotive Shop. So today, the gunshop is a locomotive shop; the fuse shop makes bolts and screws; the gun carriage shop makes Diesel motors; and all large halls suitably equipped are given over to locomotive repairing.

One sees plate making for locomotives instead of for battleships; milk separators instead of ordnance press covers; instruments, farm implements instead of guns and shells; railway tires instead of gun mounts; ship propellers for commercial vessels instead of for naval ships; Diesel motor development for peacetime work instead of for U-boats.

The plant is experimenting with a number of agents to standardize them and to make only such articles as involve comparatively minor plant alteration or outlay for machinery. As it is, however, much machinery must be scrapped or sold. For instance lathes which girls used to run now stand in great rows, idle, awaiting sale to individual plants.

My druggist recommended Vinol as the best medicine for my condition. I felt better after taking the first bottle. It has given me a good appetite, I sleep better and feel stronger in every way." — Mrs. J. HERMAN WILDS.

It is the Beef and Cod Liver Peptones contained in Vinol aided by Iron and Hypophosphites which makes it such a famous blood-maker, nerve builder and strength creator. Besides Vinol is not a secret medicine. Its full formula is printed on each package.

"BOOTLEGGERS" FAIL TO WELCOME CENSUS MAN

DENVER, Jan. 22.—Census enumerators have discovered a "house of mystery" in Denver. The address, which for good reasons is being withheld by the director of the census, is in one of the best residential districts of the city. When the enumerator called at the address the windows were all heavily curtained from top to bottom. The enumerator pushed the bell and waited. Presently heavy footsteps were heard as the someone was approaching the door. Then they stopped but the door did not open. Again and again the enumerator rang the bell, but silence was all that greeted the summons. The enumerator finally gave up the attempt to arouse the dwellers, but returned again another day. Again heavy footsteps were heard to approach the door and stop, but the door did not open.

After several experiences of this kind, the enumerator went next door and asked if anyone lived in the "house of mystery." He was told that no one had ever been seen to enter the house in the daytime, but that an automobile frequently stopped there at night and men were seen to enter the house.

"It is pretty generally believed in this neighborhood that they are bootleggers," said the woman who answered the enumerator's inquiries. The district attorney has been asked to investigate the house.

Probably there is no personal sacrifice so great as that of the misguided woman who marries a man to reform him.
