"SLOCUM" DOCKS AFTER LOSING BOATS AT SEA

ASTORIA, Jan. 28.—With the Rootes, a concrete boat, in tow, the tug Slocum, commanded by Captain Hansen, docked at the port terminals at 5 o'clock last evening after having spent four days in a gale which caused the loss of three of the four boats which the tug started to tow to San Francisco from this city.

According to Captain Hansen the tug encountered serious trouble Sunday morning when, owing to the terrific gale, the concrete boats began filling with water.

The crews were taken off all the boats except the Rootes. Sunday night the lines parted and two of the boats went adrift.

Mates Are in Command.

This morning another of the boats was lost, owing to the hawser parting and the Slocum reached port with only the Rootes in tow. It is thought the other boats eventually will drift ashore. An effort will be made tomorrow to locate them.

It is reported here that the captains in charge of the various concrete boats refused to go out with the vessels four days ago, and that the mates were promoted to masters. The captains, it is said, contended that the boats were unseaworthy.

The boats, which were built in the yard of the Great Northern Concrete Shipbuilding company of Vancouver, Wash., have concrete hulls but wooden houses, which were not built to weather heavy seas.

Left River Thursday.

They were equipped with two standard 120 horsepower gasoline engines and cost approximately $100,000 each.

The tug Oneonta got in touch with the Slocum as she left for the mouth of the river to take the pilot off the steamer Abercos, which was leaving out.

The five barges propelled by their own power but convoyed by the government [illegible] left the Columbia river last Thursday. One was left at the mouth of the river. The others were bound for San Francisco.

IMPROVEMENT BONDS ARE AUCTIONED OFF

WALLA WALLA, Jan. 28.—City Clerk Fred Wills yesterday afternoon auctioned off some $46,000 worth of local improvement bonds, covering Pearson, Pleasant, Jones street and a number of other short streets, the entire issue going to the Union Trust company at 98.

A number of other bidders were given whatever they wanted out of the Union Trust company's allotment, the company taking the balance of the issue at the figure bid. Those purchasing a part of the Union Trust company's allotment were George Kellough, $2,000; A. C. Moore, $2,000; J. S. Bucher, $5,000, and one or two others for smaller amounts.

The next big sale of city bonds will occur on March 9 when the city will offer the $560,000 issue of Water Extension Bonds. The commissioners desire that local investors take up the entire issue at an interest rate of 5 per cent. Clerk Wills stated there ought to be 500 people in Walla Walla who would buy a $1,000 bond each, thus making the water extension bonds a purely local investment.

PARIS IS NEEDING JUST 2,500 NEW POLICEMEN

PARIS, Jan. 28.—Paris is suffering from a new crisis, a crisis of policemen, whose insufficient number in the day as well as in the night time makes people doubt whether it is safe to be in Paris. The city which is now more jammed during the day than ever before, is more deserted over night than during an airplane bombardment in war time.

People who have to be out for their business between midnight and five o'clock in the morning, can walk for miles without meeting a sinkle policeman.

Policemen are very hard to recruit in France. In Paris, owing to the war, the effectives of the police force were diminished and it has not been possible to replace those who did not return. Further, while before the war, four or five hundred new policemen were sufficient every year, there are needed today 2500.

Another War.

"What's the charge against this man?" asked the judge.

"Fighting in the public street," replied the officer.

"You're fined nine dollars and 90 cents."

"What's the 90 cents for, judge?"

"War tax."

"But the war's over, your honor."

"Over nothing! You were fighting, weren't you?"—Yongers Statesman.
