

These New Spring DRESSES

ARE EXCEPTIONALLY DECORATIVE

Authoritative advice from those "high up" in Fashion predict a strong vogue for dresses this season and if those still to come are anywhere as becoming as these, we know the reason why. No woman who sees these, but will fall in love with them at first sight. There is such a diversity of pretty styles that choosing becomes a pleasure. We can't describe them. Each model possesses its own distinct features, yet each blends itself so happily to the current styles.

COLLEGE STUDENT JAILED FOR CAREER OF LARCENY

PULMAN, Wash., Jan. 23.—William Burns, an ex-soldier enrolled in the department of elementary science of the state college under the vocational training plan followed by the government has been arrested and taken to Colfax to answer to a charge of larceny. Burns had been under suspicion for some time and a few days ago went to Spokane. While he was absent his room was searched under a search warrant and numerous articles alleged to have been stolen from the state college were found.

It is alleged that the thefts extend over a period of several months and include almost everything that the case could lay his hands on. The discovery of the culprit was due largely to the assistance given the officials by the vocational club of the college, composed of war veterans.

SILK HAS GROWN SO COSTLY, THAT OF BATISTE AND VOILE, LENA MAKES HER LINGERIE, PROFITEERS TO FOIL

BY MARGARET ROHR
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Since the products of the silkworm have spun up to such dizzy heights, no one but a Mrs. Croesus can afford the luxury of undies. Those soft and rosy days when glove silk vests, crepe de chine combinations, wash satin chemise and crepe georgette nighties were easy of attainment to a moderately plump purse are past. The swish of silk underwear is becoming as extinct as the swish of the cocktail shaker.
Just as the male multitude has gone to the extreme lengths in indulging wood alcohol, perfume and other substitutes for the delectation of the inner man, so has the female contingent, in lieu of silken undergarments, gone to the sheer lengths of mull, nainsook, batiste and lovely soft French voile for the decoration of the inner woman.

Chic Voiles Evolved

For over a year back during the wartime days clever Parisian lingerie designers have evolved the most chic and adorable undergarments of the day to take the place of prohibitively priced silk materials.
Either of some all-over-ray-hued voile or else of white with a hand piping of a vivid shade the cleverest of little sets, all hand made, offer no less fascinating though less silky. Now we are taking them to our bosoms and hearts and finding them quite sheer and dear enough.

The form of our undergarments varies from the Parisian mode. The French woman affects the drawer combination or else the two-piece set consisting of a short chemise and even more cut panties. These little sets of chic and cunning are now being taken up by American femininity. Though the bloomer and cambrile or the envelope chemise still play the most prominent part in the underwear of American women.

Of Yellow Voile

A charming French set which can only be copied by home fluffies is of unshiny yellow voile. The short chemise is plain save for a hemstitching band around the top through which a run a slender satin ribbon and hemstitched bands of the voile encircle the shoulders. The wide, short panties have narrow ruffles of footie with a bow of lavender at each side. Irish crochet is a popular adornment of the sheer batiste or nainsook chemise and nighties, appearing in elaborate styles or else in the faintest of designs.

The pink of perfection as to undergarments is being to fall a bit, we have been so pinkly perfect for so long. Yellow is quite the favored color of the moment especially among the non silk models and from pale tints to the color of the sun, the lavender or blue hued (orange) makes into a golden girl and makes her go the clouds irresistibly one better by having a golden lining.

ONE MAN HEADS IDAHO DEPARTMENT OF POLICE

BY DAN L. BERBER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 29.—In an emergency involving law enforcement, Idaho can quickly establish a definite policy, state-wide in its effect. This is made possible by the fact that at the state house all police authority is centered in one man. This feature, according to Robert O. Jones, state commissioner of law enforcement, is one of the greatest benefits of the Idaho state constabulary system.

Jones summed up for the United Press today the results of eight months activity of the constabulary. Created primarily to enforce liquor laws, it has been used chiefly to control L. W. W. who have entered Idaho from the northwest.

Following the Centralia killing, Idaho officials announced that radicals were entering the state in great numbers. The constabulary was then brought into full play for the first time.

Develops Continuity

"The state constabulary began its operations May 8, 1919," said Jones. "It is composed not only of state police, which is a small but well-trained and experienced force, but under the law includes all of the police officers of Idaho. Involves a centralized police agency for law enforcement, makes possible centralization of authority and develops among the different police agencies a continuity of purpose."

"Heretofore, the different county sheriffs have been primarily and almost exclusively concerned in the enforcement of laws within the boundaries of their home county. They were not so much concerned with giving assistance to any other unit. Under the constabulary law these county officials, as well as municipal officials, cooperate with each other as well as with the state police in all matters of law enforcement. One of the greatest benefits of the constabulary system has been the fact that in an emergency it enabled the state to quickly establish a definite policy of law enforcement. In the L. W. W. menace, which developed quickly in northern Idaho, the constabulary, by giving instructions to police officers, as well as by augmenting its state force was able to cope with the situation."

Stimulates Local Activity

"The attitude of the bureau and its aggressive police of ridding the state of this undesirable element, stimulated local and county units to greater activity."
"The state established the policy that it could not handle the menace by merely prodding members of the L. W. W. to move on into other states. Its policy called for the arrest of L. W. W. everywhere. Furthermore, the constabulary organization offered to county prosecutors every possible assistance in obtaining and developing evidence."

Widow Had Disappeared and with her some $7000 in cash and checks and a gold watch

With professional skill she had picked a .38 cal. revolver against a 45-caliber's stomach and then extracted the bullet and watch, taking it to him as she worked in an easy, efficient manner to "cover up" and prevent red-strings from knowing that anything unusual was happening. Eliza Miller was forced to join in this quiet conversation, he said.

DOSE OF POISON IS FATAL TO PORTLAND GIRL, 17 YEARS OLD

PORTLAND, Jan. 30.—Jean McClatchie, 17-year-old high school girl and foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Adams, 229 Stanton street died Thursday evening at her home from drinking poison. Miss McClatchie was washing dishes in the kitchen when her mother went upstairs. Mr. and Mrs. Labe James, friends of the family, were in the room. Miss McClatchie walked into the bathroom and a moment later returned through the kitchen door, holding a glass in her hand. "I have taken something," she said, and fainted away. Dr. C. D. Bedine was summoned from nearby

Children's Colds

Every parent can add to the health of the community and his or her peace of mind by guarding against coughs and colds. When your child has sniffles or watery eyes don't hesitate to take him from school for a day or two so that you may break up the cold he has contracted. You are perfectly safe in giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to your children as it contains no opium or other narcotic. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, aids expectoration, relieves the lungs and opens the secretions, helping the system to throw off the cold.

A Cough Medicine of Merit

The value of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of colds and coughs is well known and admitted by those who have used it and are in position to know its real worth. Mrs. Thomas Brechtling, Andrews, Ind., writes: "The winter my husband takes cold easily. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine for breaking up these attacks. You could not get him to take any other."

The Constipation

For this disorder you will find nothing so good as Chamberlain's Cathartic. With the proper dose is taken you hardly realize that the effect is not natural, instead of having been produced by a medicine.

but the girl died soon. No inquest will be held. Chief Deputy Coroner Leo Goetach took charge of the body. He said the girl appeared to have taken her own life, but no motive for such an act has been revealed.
Her father is Thomas McClatchie of Oregon City.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussel niting at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair, it acts as a soft brush with it and draws this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time.
