FORGE'S WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS

engaged read like dime novel fiction. After obtaining a large sum of money from the Portland firm by fraud, Clark met and dined with Mr. Lively on Sunday with a most undisturbed air. The Portland man was not certain of the guilt of Clark and after dinner decided he would like to look through the warehouses to ascertain if, by any chance, there were cars against which the receipts were issued. Clark, who had an airplane on the Frazier field, however, suggested that they first take a ride in the air. Mr. Lively consented and was driven to the field where one of the pilots, Walter H. Lees, was asked to take him up for a spin. Clark remained on the ground, but, while the plane was in flight, returned to the hotel. He left word for Mr. Lively to meet him there at 2:30. When Mr. Lively was being driven down town, Clark, by another road, returned to the field. He gave orders to Mr. Lees to take the air and head toward Portland and there they made their getaway. It was learned today that they landed at Echo to take gasoline and water and while there, Clark phoned back but did not divulge from where he was phoning.

Very Reassuring Always.

Clark was always very reassuring about his honesty and the safety of granting his financial requests, Clarence Penland said today. When Clark placed his first machines in the Pendleton warehouse and asked for receipts, he also asked as a special favor to be given a key to the warehouse, so that he might do a little work on the cars from time to time. This request was denied inasmuch as warehouse receipts are bankable and the transfer company could not afford to have the security liable in anyone's hands.

Last Saturday night Clark rushed into the Pendleton office and said he had sold a car and wanted to get it out of the warehouse. He said the receipt was in the bank. Mr. Penland informed him that he must have the receipt before he could release the car. Clark assured him that it would be perfectly safe to let it out, and that he could not get the receipt as it was past banking hours. When convinced that Mr. Penland would not release the car he finally got one of the bankers to open the institution and turn over the receipts to him.

Spent Money Like Water.

Local persons who became acquainted with Clark remarked that he was very free with his money. He was not content to drive about in cars belonging to the firm but spent many dollars on for-hire machines. He often handed the driver a bunch of bills, asking "Is this enough?" He never accepted the change.

Clark was always in a great rush to do business and it is this trait which is said to have "got him by" in numerous instances. He found Clarence Penland and one or two local bankers inclined to be conservative, however, and they were inclined to do business with him only on absolutely business principles. The bank at which he deposited the genuine warehouse receipts of Penland Brothers will lose nothing, it is said.

Even the pretense that it is needed for flu medicine cannot be made in behalf of booze in Georgia; for actually there is more booze than flu here—and the former is "mighty scarce," to hear the addicts tell it.—Atlanta Constitution.

MEAT SUPPLY ABROAD MAY CUT U. S. PRICES

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Lower prices for meat in the near future were predicted by the American Institute of meat packers today. Resumption of post-war meat industries in foreign countries and the low rate of foreign exchange will force the prices down, the institute declared in a statement issued here.

It cited the fact that England now has on hand seven months' supply of bacon. As a result American bacon, formerly exported to Britain, must find a market in the United States.

EXTENSION SCHOOL HAS NEW TEACHERS' COURSES

Announcement of four new courses of especial benefit to school teachers has just been made by the University of Oregon extension division in a notice received today by County School Superintendent W. W. Green. Each of the courses is based upon two books from the 1919-1920 reading circle list.

The work is so arranged that a teacher who completes the eight lessons and the examination in any one of the courses is entitled to one semester hour university credit and to the reading circle certificate required for a professional certificate. These courses follow the plan of the two offered last year, which were considered very successful among the teachers.

The titles of these reading circle courses and the books used in each are as follows:

1. Secondary School Methods. (Especially for high school teachers.) Texts: Colvin, An Introduction to High School Teaching; and Inglis, Principles of Secondary Education.
2. Methods in Teaching. (A course in elementary methods.) Texts: Freeman, the Psychology of the Common Branches; and Parker, General Methods of Teaching in Elementary Schools.
3. Rural School Management and Health Education. Texts: Address, Health Education in Rural Schools; and Wilkinson, rural School management.
4. Educational Sociology. Texts: Engleman, Moral Education in School and Home; and Robbins, the School as a Social Institution.

"Address" Health Education in Rural Schools is one of the most practical books on health that has ever been included on the reading circle list," says the bulletin. "It has many helpful hints, for any teacher, but may be invaluable to the rural teacher who has the desire and the opportunity to help solve health problems, not only in her school but in the community also. This book has

AN INSIDE BATH MAKES YOU LOOK AND FEEL FRESH

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, declaring this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the alimentary canal before eating more food.

Those who wake up with bad breath coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who have bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to show the value of inside bathing.
