

People Here and There

Astoria knows how to treat its visitors, say J. L. Cox, of Gray Brothers Grocery, and Mayor J. L. Vaughan, who returned this morning after attending the Oregon Retail Merchants Association convention in Astoria. Mr. Cox and Mr. Vaughan say they enjoyed the entertainment furnished by Astoria, besides learning many new pointers in the art of selling.

Coyotes are scarce just now in the Ullish region, so Albert Peterson, U. S. Biological Survey trapper, is taking a little vacation. He left this morning for Portland to visit his brother. Mr. Peterson is rejoicing in his recovery after an attack of influenza which trapped him January 4 and kept him a prisoner until a few days ago.

There are great possibilities for commercial development at the mouth of the Columbia river, N. J. Hydenstein believes. He returned last night from his first visit to Astoria, occasioned by the convention of the Oregon Retail Merchants Association. Not only did the business prospects of the seaport city look good to Mr. Hydenstein, but their brand of hospitality pleased him immensely.

"I'm not surprised," said Ralph Polson this morning as he looked at the falling snow flakes. "You can expect snow here until after March 15 and during many winters ago lots of snow fell in February and March." Mr. Polson, with his brother, Cilman Polson, were formerly in the stock business and never took the stock to the mountains before March 15, fearing cold weather.

Thomas Thompson, wheat rancher and bank director, went to Portland last night for a short visit.

Pendleton is famous for the Round-Up, its Indian blankets and, would you believe it, tombstones. T. A. Wylie, owner of the Pendleton Marble Works sells Pendleton-made monuments throughout eastern and central Oregon and southeastern Washington. He left last night for Portland on business and will return tomorrow morning.

Newspaper publishers of the state, that is, the live ones like Clark Wood, N. J. Vankilke, George Huntington Curry and George J. Cheney, are learning a few new angles of the business today at Eugene. They are attending the conference of the State Editorial Association, Astoria wants the next meeting of the editors and E. B. Aldrich, president of the Astoria Evening Budget, left last evening for Eugene to present the invitation in behalf of the lower Columbia metropolis.

A free Ireland and more paved roads, with emphasis on the latter, are two of the chief interests of Pat Lonergan, local manager of the Warren Construction Co. Probably more to make preparations for laying hot stuff in Umatilla county this spring and summer than to liberate the old sod, Mr. Lonergan is in Portland today, having managed to get a berth in No. 21's sleeping coach last night.

Twenty years from now the tourist travel to France and the Rhine will be enormous, if veterans of the recent war cherish memories as fondly as does George A. Hartman, veteran of the Spanish-American war. Mr. Hartman left last night on his way to the Philippines to stand once again on the spot. He will be accompanied this time, however, by Mrs. Hartman.

Twenty-eight years ago, Clark Wood held the dual role of city editor of the East Oregonian and city treasurer for Pendleton. He is now editor of the Weston Leader and part owner of the Athena Press. Mr. Wood was in Pendleton yesterday on his way to Eugene where he will attend the second annual conference of newspapermen and publishers.

Will Wyrtek, who every once in a while buys a little more wheat land, returned yesterday from Portland where he has been on a short business trip.

R. E. Chloupek left yesterday for a business trip to The Dalles. He bought a ticket to Portland, however, and will visit the metropolis and maybe attend a picture show.

Ung D. Goey, who is now among the punk sticks and lanterns of his native China, is expected by Chinamen in Pendleton to return here this summer. Goey, who was for years proprietor of Goey's Noodle Parlour, left Pendleton 10 months ago for China.

He's glad hand artist for Seattle's largest bank but on his card it is J. H. Miner, manager of the department of public relations, Seattle National Bank. Mr. Miner is in Pendleton today greeting local bankers at establishing connections for his institution.

Jesus W. Smith used to be political boss of Athena. Now he is converting the people of Helix to the democratic way of thinking. When he is not swinging something politically, Mr. Smith is selling merchandise at a fair profit. Mr. Smith is in the city today on business and whetting up his appetite for the latest in politics.

R. W. Ritner will leave tonight for Portland where he will attend the wedding of his brother, Harry Ritner, and Miss Blanche Mickey, of Portland. The wedding will be an event of Sunday.

R. M. Crommelin has a cough that should send him toward Arizona, but instead he is on his way to Spokane. He has a brother in the Inland Empire metropolis and will visit him until Monday there.

L. J. Metz arrived this morning from Chicago. He is a brother of M. C. Metz and a member of the firm of S. Metz and Sons.

R. T. Manchester, of Colfax, Washington, for 10 years president of the Tri State Terminal Company, is here visiting the local office. He was county commissioner of Whitman county for six years. Mr. Manchester is on his way to Baker and will visit other offices of the company.

Ralph Stanfield is absent from the cashier's window of the bank of Echo, for the prominent west-end citizen is a Pendleton business visitor today. With him is his son, Jack Stanfield.

He knows all about what's Gothic, Doric or Ionic, does A. E. Doyle, Portland architect who is in Pendleton today. He is a member of the firm of Doyle and Reese, which has an office here. They are architects for the new Elks building on the corner of Garden and Court streets.

Kissing is not done in Japan—except by foreigners. There is no law against it—except that no kissing scenes are shown in the movies—but respectable people simply don't do it.
