ROBBER ROBBS BROTHER ROBBER OF HIS LOOT

NEW YORK, March 12.—The unethical practice of a robber who specialized in robbing robbers was revealed today when a jury in general session convicted John P. Collins of grand larceny.

This robber apparently knew that Frederick P. Robb, another robber, had in his apartment $5000 and a $400 gold watch, which he had stolen from an express car in Philadelphia. He called on Robb, the "brother robber," the testimony showed, displayed a badge, announced he was a member of the police department's narcotic squad and demanded Robb's loot. He got it.

Robber Robb, who was convicted of the express robbery, was brought here to testify against Collins, who will be sentenced March 16.

SELF-STYLED "OLD HUSTLER" PROSPECTS IN MINES AT 80

SALT LAKE, March 12.—An assaying firm of Salt Lake City has received a letter from John S. Ferris, an old time miner and prospector of southern Utah, stating that he is now engaged in opening the Ferris mine at Rye Valley, Or., with good prospects of profitable returns from the gold and silver-bearing ore.

Ferris asserts he is the real discoverer of the noted Silver Reef mine of southern Utah, making the location in March, 1876, but complains that others later claimed credit for the discovery.

Only paragraph of Ferris' letter reads as follows:
"Now, at 80 years, I am still the same old hustler in the hills, and am as hearty as a bear."

SPECIAL ELECTION TO FORM PORT OF SALEM DEMANDED

SALEM, March 12.—A special election for the purpose of creating the port of Salem, involving the ultimate construction of docks, wharves and warehouses at an estimated cost of from $150,000 to $200,000, will be held here within 90 days, if the county court heeds the demands of the Salem Commercial club, made known at a meeting Wednesday night. The proposed port district would extend several miles beyond the city limits.
