SHARK HIDES MAY LOWER SHOE COSTS IN COUNTRY

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—"Sea Shoes" man soon appear as a solution of the high cost of footwear.

A process for tanning skins of shark and porpoise so they can be used for making boots and shoes has been perfected. It was announced here today by a leading member of the American Chemical Society, who said a section of the leather industry will be organized as one of the first acts of the society at its convention here April 12 to 17.

While no details of the process was given out, it was said the new department will produce much cheaper shoes than those now on the market, as ox-pegs are now looking everywhere for a durable substitute for the ordinary leathers used in making footwear.

Other processes for tanning leather will also be discussed at the convention which, officials declared, 2000 members will attend.

New processes for preparation of American sugar will receive considerable attention and the chemists, in turning their activities from war to peace, expect to play a dominant part in lowering prices for this product.

A new section of the association, devoted entirely to the sugar industry, will hold its first session this year. Increases in cane production in lower Mississippi and beet growing in western Nebraska and Kansas offer a big opportunity for purification of American sugar and putting more of it on the market, chemists declared.

Dye, help and acetone industries will come in for considerable extension, it was asserted. Announcement will be made at the convention that capitalists are waiting to put $50,000,000 into the American dye industry when its status is established.
