Monday morning from San Francisco where they have been attending the convention of the foreign-trade bodies of the United States.

Howard Drew, principal of the high school at Echo, has completed his teaching year there, and, accompanied by Mrs. Drew, will leave shortly for the Willamette valley to visit before going to his old home at Tillamook to spend the summer. Mr. Drew has been retained as principal at Echo for the coming year. He was in Pendleton today on business.

Pendleton's debaters acquitted themselves very ably, in spite of their being denied entry to the finals of the state high school championship. H. E. Inlow, coach of the team, said today. Mr. Inlow returned from Eugene on No. 4 this morning, the final debate of his proteges having been completed yesterday afternoon. The contestants, Arthur Ridd, Norborne Berkeley, Lloyd Austin and Mary Clarke, are remaining at Eugene for Junior Week End, the guests of the various organizations at the University of Oregon.

Bruce Cook, who has been camping and fishing on the north fork of Meacham creek for several days, returned last night. He reports fishing conditions there improving, but says that the trout are not biting quite as hard as they will when they finish spawning. The water in Meacham creek dropped several inches yesterday, he reported.

C. W. Demaris, farmer of Milton, is a candidate for county commissioner republican ticket. His slogan is "For All the People, All the Time." Mr. Demaris was in Pendleton yesterday.

C. F. Trask, known to his many Pendleton friends as "Red" Trask, is here today. He formerly resided in the city but is now farming near Eagle Lake, and reports that he is well pleased with the new location.

C. A. Ruff, divisional supervisor for the department of Internal Revenue, left today for Portland. Mr. Ruff has his headquarters in the Federal building but is absent from the city on field trips the greater part of the time.

Lloyd Wells, formerly of Portland, now of Bend, where he is in the lumber business, is in the city today. Friends of Mr. Wells say that it is interests in Baker that brought Mr. Wells on the trip to Eastern Oregon.

Charles E. Smith, factory representative for Universal stoves, is in the city today. He is in charge of the exhibition at the George C. Baer hardware store.

Otto Runtle, a traveling representative for Neustadter Brothers, over-all manufacturers, of Portland, is in Pendleton today, one of his regular business calls.

Another week will see the close of the year's school term at Weston, says P. C. Fitzpatrick, principal of the school there, who is in town today on business. Mr. Fitzpatrick makes his home in Weston the year round, and will pass most of the summer there.

With two prisoners to return to the Oregon State Prison, Jailer Cassidy passed through Pendleton today. He stopped off between trains long enough to be rejoined by a parole breaker en route from the prison at Walla Walla, who had been kept for two days in the county jail here, while Mr. Cassidy went to Vale, Ore., for his other charge.

J. J. Sturgill, superintendent of the Stanfield schools, was in Pendleton today. Mr. Sturgill is one of a family of educators and is a brother of J. C. Sturgill, for many years a teacher and for several years county school superintendent of Gilliam county.
