LOVES PATHWAY.

(By Frank L. Stanton.)
 In even the darkest night
 Love hath some sense of light,
 And to the loneliest day
 Love bringeth cheer away!
 If Love my pathway be,
 God may give night to me!

Dearest may my pathway be
 If Love's hand leadeth me!
 Rose—thorn—and all I take
 Thankful, for Love's dear sake
 If Love my pathway be,
 Night will be light to me!

LABOR AND THE LEAGUE.

THE action of the American Federation of Labor in endorsing the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant without reservations signifies the view of the common citizen towards the most momentous question before the nation and the world.

Labor knows and other citizens know that the chief troubles besetting the people today are the fruits of war. Shortage in supplies with resultant profiteering, social unrest and kindred difficulties are upon us because for four years the chief nations of the earth were engaged in slaughter. The able bodied men and millions of women in Europe were taken out of productive industry and devoted in one way or another to war efforts. For two years America was in the same category.

From an economic standpoint all this was colossal waste. Billions on billions in wealth was shot away. Millions of men were killed and millions maimed. To expect that the world could come out of such a struggle in normal condition is just as logical as expecting that a man recovering from typhoid fever should be fat and ready to fight Jack Dempsey.

There are those who say our troubles are with us because we have had a democratic president; others that it is because of a do nothing congress. Such claims are an insult to intelligence. No president and no congress could have saved us from the logical consequences of the war. You know that, for it is the truth. You know also that while various things can be done and should be done to help out there is only one man who can accomplish what we want and he is Father Time.

But we can and we should remove the conditions that gave the world its dose of typhoid for if we dont change those conditions the world will have it again some day—just as surely as the sun shines. It may or it may not hit us, but it will hit our children and our grand children.

Because the League of Nations offers the world what it needs and must have if its peace and security are to be safeguarded the American Federation of Labor puts its approval on the league without quibbling. So have thousands of other organizations, including almost every church convention that has been held in the last two years. In other countries the conditions are the same. Every power, big or little associated with the allied cause has accepted the league without reservations, all but the United States. The neutral countries have gladly joined the league. The claim that the league will endanger American independence is a falsehood and a fraud. Were a country's independence endangered by joining the league then Switzerland and all those little countries would not have joined. The league obligates itself to "respect and defend" the political independence and the territorial integrity of each member. As a member of the league this country would not rest for security merely upon its own arms. It would have the pledged support of all the other members of the league.

Those who fight against the League of Nations are fighting nature. They are defying evolution by denouncing the very process through which during the ages man has emerged from savagery to his present state.

They are especially silly who at a time like this try to blame the government for the inevitable consequences of war. The critics and obstructionists are in the same class as a convalescent who refuses to correct the trouble that made him ill and instead devotes his time to denouncing the doctors and nurses who aided him in his struggle for life.

The league covenant, with or without explanatory reservations, should have had the cordial support of all political elements in America. The fight to keep the United States out of the league is an inexcusable blunder.

The Shriner specials carrying men on a mission of peace and pleasure are in striking contrast with the trains that rushed eastward two years ago.

The drys say Mr. Harding once owned stock in a brewery. Nothing like a presidential campaign to bring out the weak spots.

Today is the longest day of the year, so get all the good you can out of it.

SOUTHPAW BRINGS HIM WEALTH

A great southpaw hand has lifted Lev Tendler, Philadelphia, lightweight up from a newboy of the streets to wealth and to a point in the lightweight division where he is the chief contender for Champion Benny Leonard's title. He generally considers a "lefty" in the boxing ring clumsy, but Lev is so smooth in his work that he makes his opponents look awkward.

HARVARD INTERESTED IN OREGON FOOTBALL

EUGENE, June 21.—Oregon's football system forms the piece de resistance in Harvard university's spring football practice according to Frank R. Scalfie, Oregon graduate who returned recently from his studies in the Harvard medical school.

Mr. Scalfie reports that the Crimson coaches are making every effort and experiment to fathom the mysterious style of play by which the light Oregon team, "outlanders," they almost seemed, held the great Harvard eleven last New Year's day.

The Harvard stadium sees the coaches working with their squad daily, and Mr. Scalfie declares that, though they have succeeded in mimicking the outward appearance of the slashing attack and unflinching defense of Oregon, they have still missed the essential secret.

Harvard coaches have been frankly outspoken in their admiration of the style of play they met at Pasadena, and have expressed desire to be acquainted with its intricacies. Christus Huntington, Oregon's coach, however, smiles non-committently and assures one that he is giving out no information on that score. It may be that Oregon will want to play Harvard again some day.
