OLDEST AND YOUNGEST SUFFRAGE WORKERS AT THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

Suffragists young and old, aided in picking the Coliseum during the Republican National Convention in Chicago. Above are seen one of the oldest and one of the youngest of the workers for votes for women. Miss Betty Graman, of Portland, Ore., is shown with Miss Olympia Brown, Miss Brown, who is eighty-five years old, went from Racine, Wis., to see what she could do to help force the Republican politicians to commit themselves definitely to national suffrage for women.

A LOVE LETTER.
(By Frank L. Stanton.)
For all life's joys—it's passion and its pain
From which we would depart,
I drift toward you, counting less as gain
Sweetheart! Sweetheart! Sweetheart!
Once more I close oblivion's iron gates,
And let the tears from sealed up eyelids start;
For you I storm the barriers of Fate,
Sweetheart! Sweetheart! Sweetheart!

After and, lonely years your face—your name
Are perfect with me; nothing now remains
Are perfect with me; nothing now remains
Of some of wrong, and of the world's blame,
No bitter cup life drains.

And you've forgiven me, and I had need
Of much forgiveness; and I take your hand
And lead to where even God Himself would lead—
To Love's remembered land.

Have hope and heart for all the future years,
And let the dim dreams of the night depart!
The Sunshine calls you! Lo, where Life appears
Sweetheart! Sweetheart! Sweetheart!

THE WOOL SITUATION

THE federal reserve board, at a recent meeting with wool dealers, warehousemen and manufacturers, restored confidence in the wool industry by a plan of financing the growers during the present money shortage. Conditions surrounding the decline in the price of wool to the grower were brushed out and a plan of relief evolved, which, according to Dr. S. W. McClure, of this city, will permit growers to hold their clips until such time as a fair price return is possible.

The plan adopted provides that a wool grower may ship his wool to one of the usual points of distribution, obtaining from the railroad a bill of lading; the grower may then draw a draft against his bank, for such amount as may be agreed upon by the grower and the bank, and secured by the bill of lading. Warehouse receipts are likewise acceptable. Under terms of the federal reserve act, any member bank is authorized to accept a draft secured in this manner at the time of acceptance, provided that the draft matures in not more than six months from the time of acceptance. After acceptance such a draft bearing the endorsement of a member bank is eligible for rediscount or purchase by a federal reserve bank, provided that it has a maturity of not more than three months from the date of rediscount or purchase.

With such a system of finance in vogue, growers can be spared the necessity of moving their wool, in part or whole, for less than the cost of production, in order to obtain money for their immediate needs. With a wool warehouse in Portland, it is possible for growers to ship their clips there, take their warehouse receipts to their banks and obtain probably from 25 to 40 cents a pound for them. The recent action of the reserve board is taken to indicate that wool prices will come back.

THE CONGRESSIONAL VISIT

RIGHT hopes for the future of the McKay creek reservoir project are intensified by the forthcoming visit of the house appropriations committee on July 16. Already promised an auspicious development by officers of the reclamation department, this project in slightly more than a year is receiving attention from the body of men who hold the purse strings of the lower house.

The program for the visitors looks well. First they will see what irrigation can do and has done. Then they will see lands which now need only the additional water, such as McKay creek will afford, to make them garden spots. After that impression has been made they can examine the proposed water supply and the site for retaining it.

Irrigation furnishes the big means of expansion in this territory and this time henceforth the future of Pendleton and Umatilla county is linked strongly with reclamation. It is of paramount importance to this section that the visitors leave with a resolution to look upon the project with favor.

Everyone will welcome the contemplated change in the train service, following the earlier arrival from the east of No. 5, except, perhaps, the fishermen who have found schedules convenient.

San Francisco today turned on itself a national spotlight just as bright as it did no two other big occasions, its fire and its world fair. Probably what happens there this week will be of even greater importance than the predecessors.

Inquiries about those round trip rates to the seashore are getting in order.

Water Is Getting Lower.
Water in the Umatilla river is diminishing in volume quite rapidly, according to A. E. Perry, county watermaster. Between Friday night and

Saturday night the river lost 28 second feet of water, going from 178 second feet to 150 second feet. From this time on he expects water in this district to go down steadily. The water has stayed well up in volume for nearly a month longer than in 1919, however, he says. The water has remained up in company with the backward growing season. In the east end of the county there is still lots of water coming to the districts under irrigation.

Marines' Commander in Meuse-Argonne Offensive Who is Now Their Chief

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has announced the appointment of Major General John A. Lejeune as Major-General commanding the Marine Corps, to succeed Major-General George Barnett. General Lejeune commanded the famous second division when it broke the German line in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, and Secretary Daniels said the appointment was in line with the policy of the department to reward officers who served with distinction during the war. The new chief of the "Devil Dogs" commanded the Second Division not only in the Meuse-Argonne offensive but also at St. Mihiel and Monte Blanc Ridge.

To the Ladies of PENDLETON

Our lady representative will call at your home to show you what Calumet Baking Powder will do for you and why it is called the cook's best friend.

The demonstration and test she will make are interesting and instructive. The test is not a comparative test of the strength of different baking powders because the water glass test does not show the strength of baking powder that does not contain white of egg. The test will, however, show the superiority of Calumet in other respects and prove why it has solved all baking problems in millions of homes. Calumet is not only the best leavening agent possible to make, but it is sold at a popular price and is therefore an important factor in reducing the high cost of living.

Calumet is manufactured in the largest, finest and most sanitary baking powder plant in the world, by experts who make nothing but baking powder. Calumet received the highest awards for purity and efficiency at the world's greatest pure food expositions at Chicago in 1907, and at Paris, France, in 1912. Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been officially approved by the United States Food Authorities.

Calumet is guaranteed to be Pure in the Can and Pure in the Baking. Try Calumet once at our risk. Your money back without question if it isn't the best baking powder you ever used.
