PASTIME TODAY

In "The Inn of the Bine Moon," by Louis Joseph Vance, in which Doris Renyon wil appear at the head of her own company, De Laxe Pictures, inc. of the Pastime Theatre Sunday and Monday in a rather hateful part—that of a female villian. The character is not one of the generally accepted campire kind but a woman who, solely through fealousy, stops at no means to accomplish her own end at the expense of those who have befriended lier. She is particularly bitter in her uttacks upon Dorothy and Justime Druce, the two characters interpreted by Miss Kenyon. It is only after she Druce, the two characters interpreted by Miss Kenyon. It is only after she has almost rulned the habbness of both girls that the treachery of Adelaide Druce is revealed and she is sent in disgrace from the home that sheltered lite.

The role of Adelaide is speendidly played by Miss Lyn Donaidson, who off the screen, is one of Miss Kenyon's dearest personal friends. An extremely beautiful, loxing and lovable girly Miss Donaidson has always played "heavies." Her father is in the American diplomatic service and she has spent a number of years in foreign countries.

MARGUERITE CLARK IS

"LADY BOUNTIFUL" TO HER LATTLE DOURLE. The impulsiveness which is Margueric Clark's chief characteristic in her new pleturs, "all-Of-A-Sudden Perry," showing at the Arcade Theather Sunday, isn't confined to inspective form. In the studio Miss Clark stumbled upon a little girl who played her double in a scene and who was lunching on a piece of bread and a purple Easter egg, much the worse for wear. Investigation developed that the diet wasn't a fad with the child, but a necessity, for there was nothing clark sat down on the floor and cried, then sent for a lawyer and had her give me a thrill, but I managed to Clark sat down on the floor and cried. Isn't it true that you would paint your floors oftener if you didn't have to keep the house upset so long waiting for the paint to dry?

Wouldn't you do it oftener if you could paint one half of the floor one day, then move the furniture over from the other half and paint that the next day?

Well, that's just what you can do with Lowe's Hard

Drying Floor Paint. This fact, togother with the way it stands wear and tear is the reason it is used so much on restaurant floors and ship decks.
