STAR VAULTERS

Two stars stand out as the best pole vaulters in the country. They are Frank K. Foss, holder of the world's record, 13 feet 3 1/2 inches, and E. E. Myers of Dartmouth. Myers has done 13 feet and is said to have the most perfect form in vaulting. It will be a pretty battle when the two scrape the skies at Harvard stadium in the final trials on July 17.

THE GHOST OF SONG

(By Frank L. Stanton.)

Last eve a strain of music that you know
Came—like a ghost from a remembered day,
And led me where the lovelier lilies blow,
To you—so far away!

And all the grief of all the lonely years—
The desolate, black barriers of wrong,
Fled; and the sunlight glistened through Love's tears:—
Love took the wings of song!

AN OFFICER SHOULD HAVE SOME RIGHTS HIMSELF

THE methods by which the two characters, Owen and Hart, were captured by Sheriff Taylor and his deputies raises the question as to how far an officer of the law should go in showing mercy towards men of this character. The stories in the case indicate that the robbers may have had no scruples about killing or wounding the officers if they could have done so. Under such circumstances would not the sheriff and deputies have been justified in shooting their men first and capturing them afterwards? Who can say that it is incumbent on an officer to make himself a target for others and then further increase his own danger by trying to take his man without hurting him? Such a policy does not seem fair to the officer nor to his family. If an escaping criminal wants to fight and tries to fight, does not that release an officer from any qualms about shooting to kill?

It is much better, of course, that no one was killed in the big chase Monday. The officers are to be complimented on such successful work with such slight bloodshed but people will pardon them if the next time they think more of their own safety and less about taking their prisoners unharmed. The way for a criminal to avoid danger is to refrain from resistance.

CHIVALRY OF TODAY

NOT many months ago the country rang with the story of the husband, who unable to free the imprisoned foot of his wife, chose to die with her under the wheels of an express train. A few days ago the newspapers told of another husband, a noted surgeon, who, without anaesthetic, calmly cut strips of flesh from his own leg and grafted them on the mangled ankle of his wife that she might escape deformity. We have sometimes read that the chivalry of old is dead but did ever a knight of old do anything more chivalrous for his lady faire than did these two modern-day husbands?

THE SUCCESSFUL PARTNERSHIP

OUR courts are filled with cases growing out of broken contracts. One man fails to keep his written pledge because he believes that, under technicalities of the law, he is not legally bound. Another evades the liability of his contract because he had been astute enough to word it so that it does not mean literally what was clearly understood when signed. In contrast to these all-too-numerous quarrels over broken promises, it is refreshing to read of a partnership that has functioned with perfect harmony and fairness without the scratch of a pen to make it binding.

Such a partnership George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris have just terminated after 17 years and the partnership ends as it began, in mutual friendship and esteem. They had a verbal understanding, clear to each, and each carried out his part of it. The word of each was as good as his bond. Partnerships, after all, are successful only when there is a reciprocal confidence and trust and no written contract can make any partnership wholly successful if these elements be lacking.

THE THIRD PARTY AND THE LEAGUE

THE platform of the so-called third party has a plank declaring against the League of Nations and in favor of recognizing the Russian soviet government. Those planks alone are sufficient to classify the third party move as a bolshevistic affair. The labor forces as represented by the Federation of Labor convention at Montreal support the League of Nations and ask for ratification of the treaty. Holding such views the only real place for the intelligent labor vote to go this fall is to Governor Cox who stands for the league covenant without changes that will impair its integrity. Because of its stand against the League of Nations the third party is not likely to attract heavy support outside of Wisconsin and the Dakotas. Even in Wisconsin the outcome is in doubt for the reason that with two anti league tickets in the field the democrats may be able to carry that state.

VICTOR OF BOAT RACE MAY BE KNOWN FRIDAY

NEW YORK, July 15.—Time allowance, a vital factor to any yachtsman, added importance last night on the eve of the first America's cup race of 1920, when it was learned that in the event of a close finish the winner might not be known before Friday.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 15.—The first airplane party which ever has stopped at the national parks highway office here to inquire about "road conditions" was received here when Jack G. Rankin and G. C. Moser of Walla Walla sought information concerning the elevation of Garrison, Mont.

The party landed outside the city and motored in to obtain the advice. They were on the way to Great Falls, Mont., and they had made the first leg of the journey from Walla Walla in one hour and 45 minutes. CHILDLESS WOMEN

Please Read This Letter And See What Normal Health Will Do For You.

Lancaster, Pa.—"I was weak and run down, had pains in my head, back and stomach all the time, and bearing down pains. I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me, so my mother got me to try it again, and I am now feeling better than I have for years. We were married sixteen years and had no children, but now we have a fine big boy and we always call him our 'Pinkham' boy. The doctor was afraid of my case as I was 41 years old when the boy was born, but I came through all right. You can use this as a testimonial if you wish, and I will certainly write to any one who writes to me about it."—Mrs. MARGARET G. HAVEMAN, 529 Howard Avenue, Lancaster, Pa.
