SOLID COMFORT.

(By Frank L. Stanton.)
Swaying and swaying
In a hammock 'neath the pines,
And summer winds a-playing
With the honeysuckle vines,
Meadow-bells a-ringing
To the summer day,
And a mockingbird a-singing
Like he'd sing his soul away!

Solid comfort in it!
No stormy-flag unfurled;
You'd think, not for a minute,
Grief was in the world!

THE HARDING ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

IN HIS acceptance speech Senator Harding said some splendid things. The address as a whole bears out his reputation as a gifted orator. Like President Wilson and like his competitor, Governor Cox, the republican nominee makes good use of the English language. No matter who is elected we are going to have a man in the white house who knows how to express himself well.

On numerous industrial and economic subjects there can be no questioning the soundness of the senator's views. We need more production and we need deflation. He does not lay sufficient stress on steps the present administration is taking towards deflation. The deflating process is on already and it is trite to say that it is business where the country must move with caution. It would mean ruin to go too fast. This was a colossal war involving gigantic expenditures and only time can bring the relief we want.

On the railroad issue Harding lays too much blame on alleged failure of governmental operation. He minimizes the fact that private operation broke down under the war strain and that the government had to assume control. He likewise overlooks the fact that private control even with unprecedented governmental aid is not fully answering the nation's need.

Regarding Mexico Mr. Harding uses the words "friendship" and "sympathy." Those words smack more of the San Francisco platform than of the Chicago platform. They are wise words just the same. The senator criticizes the Wilson policy towards Mexico yet comes very near advising that very policy.

As to the dry amendment he gives a law enforcement pledge which is right and proper. He says the enforcement law may be changed if the people desire but he does not express any convictions of his own on this point. He was not expected to do so as his platform is silent upon that topic and the candidate should stand upon his platform.

The weak spot in the Harding attitude is his opposition to the League of Nations. He sustains the Chicago platform's repudiation of the league and advises a world court instead. He would have peace by justice, not by force. You can logically uphold his stand if you believe a police judge can successfully maintain the peace of his community without any police force to back him. You can accept the Harding viewpoint if you believe our state supreme court can enforce the laws of Oregon without the aid of governor, sheriff or militia. Likewise you can acclaim the senator's attitude if you believe that the Hague Tribunal was successful in its purpose in 1914 and that we did not have a great world war.

The contention that a world court without force behind it can preserve peace is fundamentally wrong. It defies human nature, it runs counter to history and to evolution. Wherever peace or disarmament have occurred they have always come because a higher power or alliance used force or stood ready to use force in defending the smaller or weaker unit of society. This has been true from the stone age to the present day and no one can change this rule. Mr. Harding's logic is enough to make Theodore Roosevelt turn over in his grave. The colonel did not believe that peace could be maintained by any such process.

The Harding view that the league covenant would destroy American independence wont stand scrutiny. The league would not infringe upon our rights but instead would give our government and our institutions a protection greater than ever before. All the allied and neutral powers, each as jealous as we on the subject of nationalism, have joined the league and their action refutes the Harding theory with a force that cannot be matched with words.

Senator Harding if president would try to have the world give up the league and all that mankind hopes for under the operations of the covenant. He would go back to the pre war status by establishing something very much like we had at The Hague. Was it for that we poured out our gold, was it for that our four million soldiers fought, would such a goal suffice for the sorrowing mother who having lost a son is consoled and inspired by the thought that he died in a war to end war?

The Chicago platform and Mr. Harding's interpretation thereon makes his election an impossibility.

Whatever the outcome of the yacht series may be at least they cannot say we did not win one race.

It is evident that the Portland Oregonian is badly worried over the Cox candidacy.

Dollar wheat might have sounded alright in Mr. Harding's state but not out this way.

"What's the real cause of tire trouble, anyway?"

WHY do we have just as many blow-outs and punctures as we did a few years ago? Does the present fault with tires lie in material or workmanship? These are questions you have often asked yourself. They are of paramount importance to motorists everywhere.

After a thorough study of this matter we discovered that the real reason for premature tire trouble is porous rubber. Ordinary tires are built of rubber which is distinctly porous in character. Its toughness and elasticity are quickly impaired with usage. Grease, sand and a quantity of other harmful substances are ground into the pores and attack the softened surfaces. The result is a premature breaking down of the tread and inner fabric.

Due to the discovery of a remarkable compound, these common troubles can now be greatly reduced. Crolide Compound, first produced in 1917, makes tires non-porous. It seals the millions of tiny pores. It makes rubber practically impervious to moisture, oil and grit. It prevents rapid disintegration.

Crolide Compound Tires now available

Made of Crolide Compound, this new rubber is 50% to 100% tougher than ordinary rubber, and yet resilient. A one-inch strip stretches to 7 1/2 inches.

Because they are made with this remarkable compound, Thermoid Tires eliminate the premature trouble you experience with ordinary tires. Either the cord or fabric type gives maximum mileage under all road and weather conditions.

You are invited to call and see these new tires—also the famous Crolide Compound Tubes. Let us tell you interesting detailed facts, experiences and tests that show why Thermoid Tires and Tubes end premature trouble and give better mileage.

Write or ask us for name and address of the Thermoid dealer who will supply you.

Ordinary rubber is porous. Crolide Compound is non-porous. It resists moisture, oil and grit.

LONDON, July 22.—(U. P.)—

Great Britain today advised the Polish government to ask Soviet Russia for an armistice, according to well informed circles.

It was stated that the Soviet reply to the British peace proposal has been received. The Soviet note is said to be "ambiguous but holding promise of solution of the Russian-Poland problem." It is believed that all negotiations will be broken off if the reds have invaded the old Polish boundary line.
